we take pride in her clubs and organizations

we rejoice in her spirited places

we love her because she cares

she cares whether her students succeed or fail

she praises and encourages and is gentle

she forms a woman

a woman sometimes troubled and sometimes joyful and of this woman she expects greatness

she expects this woman to grow deeply alive

she expects her to make for herself and for others

Staff Sets High Goals for Students

Maintenance Management

Truth frees the mind and builds the person; it opens unexplored continents. The Marian staff, both faculty and administration, dedicates its time and effort to the development of knowledge in the students. Whether laughing with a class or pondering a deep question or smiling silently when a student comes upon the answer herself, the teacher seeks one objective: the pursuit of truth in freedom. Perhaps the answer is not always clear, and the teacher and student must search together, but their openness leads them to a genuine understanding.

More important is the administration which provides for an atmosphere of intellectual activity for nearly a thousand girls. Professional efficiency as well as a personal interest in each of the students marks the dedication of those who organize the school.

Order is the essence of beauty. The excellent order which is the beauty of Marian results from the hard work performed "behind the scenes." Maintenance crews are an essential part of the entire organization and of the smooth running of Marian.

Senior Kathy Conroy uses her study hall to prepare for an English class, reading one of the four books in the literature series.

English Students Grasp Deep Truths

Interpretation of Shakespeare's "Macbeth," which includes these three cackling witches, is important in English III.

A small group led by Mr. Coleman discusses one of the novels read by the Great Books Discussion Club.

All of man's ideas and hopes may be found in literature. The great thoughts of the centuries affect the student today in her search for truth and knowledge. To penetrate, to comprehend the ideas of great thinkers and writers is the essential aim of the Marian English courses. Regardless of the author or the century, the search remains the same: to discover the meaning and emotion that the writer conveys through his language and form. Courses in American, English, and world literature develop in the student a constant desire to understand man and the countless ways in which he expresses himself. A critical analysis of literary works is not only a valuable help in understanding but also an important means of building the student's own power of expression.

While a study of literature is vital, the English course emphasizes the importance of writing ability. Every student aims to develop clear, effective, expository writing. Creative writing is a discovery in which the student opens for herself new worlds of thought to which she gives expression.

Their first introduction into Shakespeare, a discussion of "The Merchant of Venice," delights Cathy Kane and Peggy Aste.

Math Students Meet the Challenge

All students must have a reason for every step that they take. This statement may seem like a broad generalization, but it actually is the new approach in mathematics. Students also learn the properties of number systems and the use of set notation. In attempting to bridge the gap between grade and high school math, new books have been introduced in the ninth grade.

Using three different textbooks, the freshmen learn the basic properties of algebra. In the tenth grade, the students study geometry, learning the use of a compass and protractor. Third year is a combination of advanced algebra and trigonometry, and the fundamentals of graphing. The fourth-year class gives special attention to analytic geometry as an introduction to calculus. This class, being considerably smaller, is able to study all facets in detail.

Sophomores Jeanne Radley and Susan Zimcosky must be attentive to comprehend geometric principles and tools.

Pat Kinney demonstrates a new problem-solving method.

Working with numbers is sometimes difficult, as Mary Campbell knows, trying to determine the dimensions of a triangle. One must remember formulas and the use of protractors and compasses.

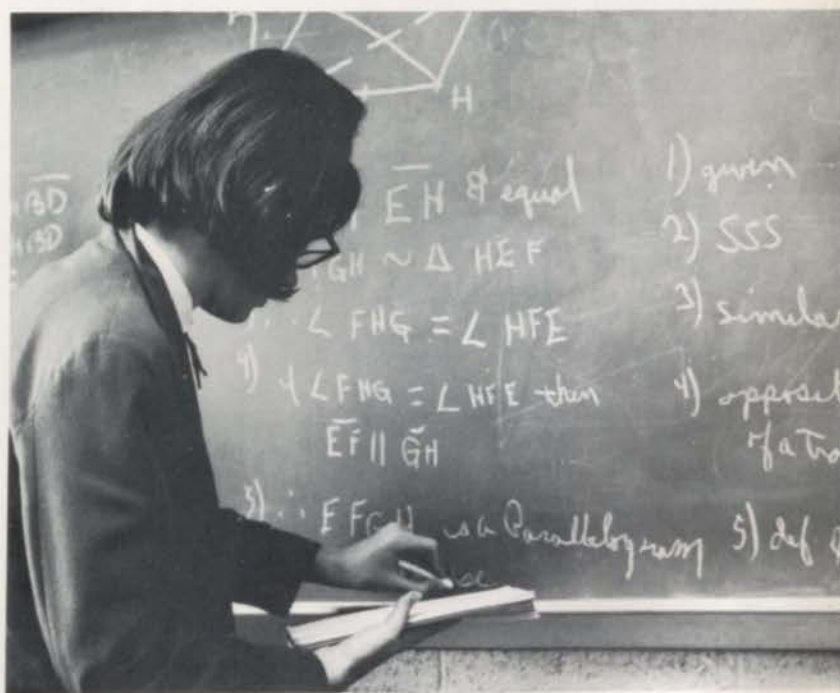

Concentration on theorems, application to problems, and making corrections are all part of Lynn Burnettes, Mary Lou Simmons and Mary Murphy's geometry class. Rare is the day when all the problems are absolutely correct.

Vicki Najor is puzzled by the geometry problem her teacher is explaining.

A problem in analytic geometry in Math IV takes Marcia Pawlowski a sizable amount of board space to write out.

The participation of Janet Sabo, Sue Alkire, and Marcia Kassin in a panel discussion provides the class with additional knowledge about a religious topic and adds interest.

Religion Classes Inform and Develop

Changes in the Church brought about by the Council interest Gracemary Young.

In a Bible vigil, each student personally contacts God through His word read by Lynn Burnett.

Acting as "altar girl," Mary O'Reilly assists Father Geary as he offers Mass facing the congregation in the Marian chapel.

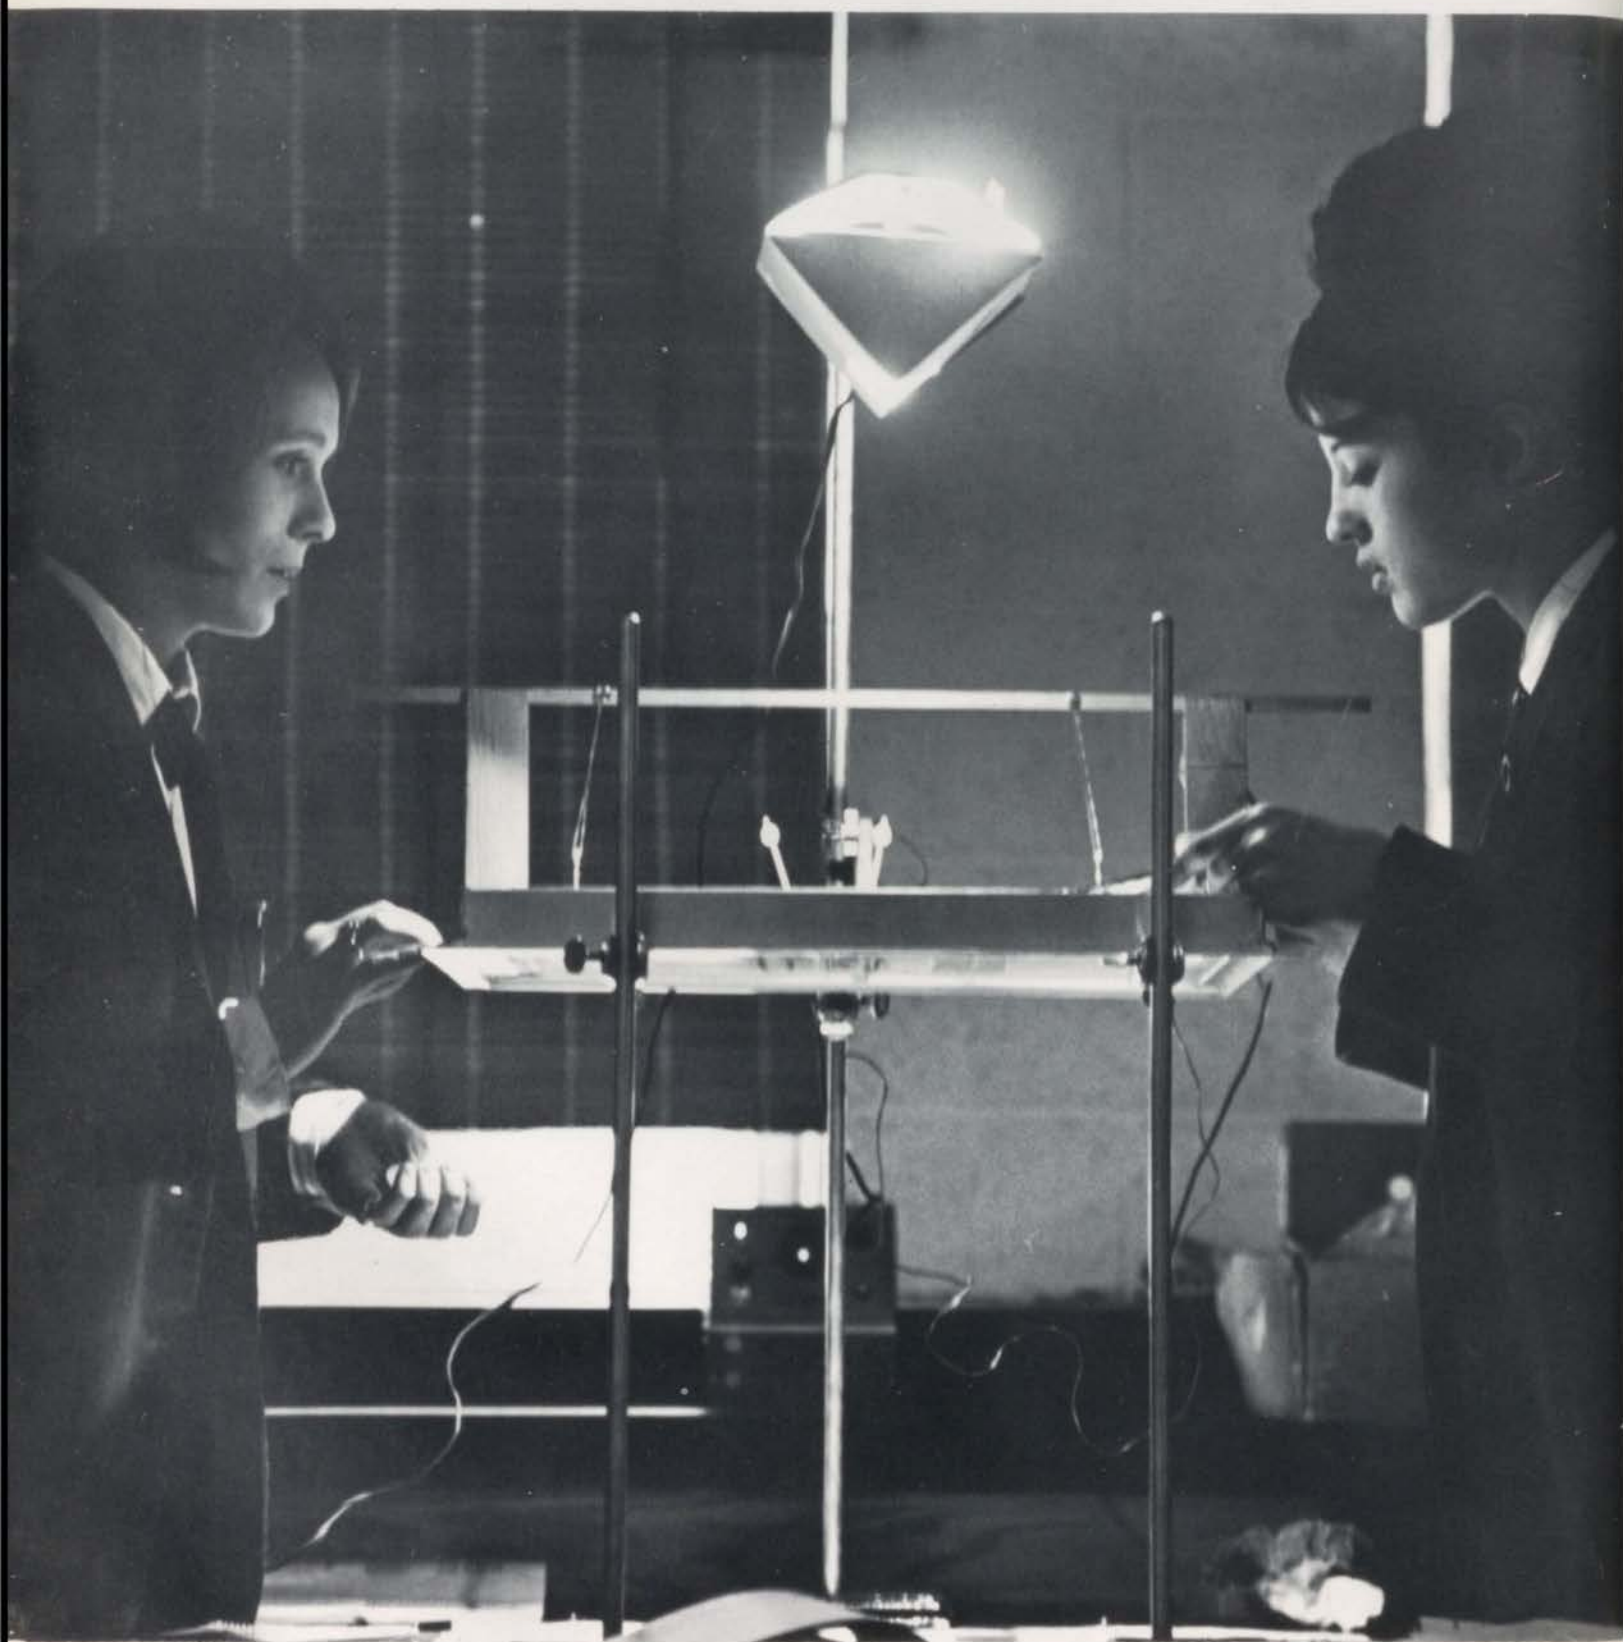

In religion class, controversial subjects sometimes have to be discussed in order to be understood, as Janet Small demonstrates.

In this age when belief in God and a well-informed knowledge of Christian life is of vital importance, religion cannot be just another class. The Church has progressed so rapidly in the past few years that religion courses have necessarily been revised according to new outlooks. While the basic plan of the course remains the same, the approach has changed; it has become more existential, more meaningful in the daily lives of the students. Freshmen see the whole of salvation history, linking Judaism with its fulfillment, Christianity. After studying God's saving action toward man, second-year religion classes concentrate on man's response to God through worship, prayer, and the practice of charity. Junior and senior religion courses have been revised to a greater extent. In the third year, students concentrate on Church History by tracing the development of certain themes through the centuries rather than by concentrating on events. Study of the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy highlights the course and develops better understanding of the sacraments. The vocation of the contemporary Christian woman in its various expressions forms the keynote of the senior course. With the help of Mater et Magistra, seniors consider the social aspect of the Church in the world today and realize that Christianity demands a social commitment.

Senior religion class discussion of marriage makes Gayle Elliott and Peggy Conklin think about the future.

Experiments, Research, and Projects

Generate Enthusiasm for Science

Time, space, and matter are all essentials of our daily lives and are also the fundamental notions of physics. Experiencing these concepts through laboratory work enables the students to learn by direct methods. The facts and conclusions arrived at through experimentation are explained and correlated by the basic theories presented in the text. During the first semester the students spend a greater part of the time in the study of light and its properties. Later in the year they are introduced to Newton's laws of motion, electricity, and atomic structure.

Learning about substances and how they react with each other requires the complete attention of each student who takes chemistry. By experimentation the student learns to formulate important principles which are more fully presented in the text. To add to the student's comprehension of basic theories and laws, related films are used. It is necessary to acquire both a chemical vocabulary and laboratory techniques.

Concentration in chemistry has double meaning for G. Latimer.

Attention in class is necessary if R. Foster is to understand chemistry.

A ripple tank is used to study the behavior of waves. The glass-bottomed tank enables Jo Hallett and Pat Schmitt to view shadows of the waves on a white screen lying on the table.

The language lab is used for many purposes: Cynthia Tushis is correcting the day's assignment and posing questions on the material;

Karen Simms is having a hard time translating eighteenth-century French literature while keeping her books organized.

Languages Encourage Creativity

Language is an art requiring long hours of practice, as many students will testify. But once some degree of proficiency is achieved, there is an unequalled joy in being able to understand a writer in his own language. While many Marian students take at least two years of Latin, some intensify their study in the third and fourth year. Latin encourages logical thinking and enriches the student's literary knowledge. Great writers, including Caesar, Cicero, and Virgil, present the challenge of timeless thought.

Modern languages offer an opportunity for development in self-expression and creativity. The first two years of French and Spanish are devoted primarily to a mastery of grammar and usage. But the stress is upon development of conversational, reading, and writing techniques, and fluency in using them.

Freshmen experience their first taste of a new language when they tackle the declensions and conjugations of Latin. Marsha Barr and Lynn Ficke also gain insight from a report on customs.

Freshmen Sue Ludwig, Sandy Cieslik and Kathy Cortez enjoy participating in a Latin pageant complete with Roman costumes.

Sight translation, foreign vocabulary words, spelling (with accents) — all are new to Spanish students such as Ann Daly.

Third-year Virgil students using the fourth-year Latin book find translation a true challenge. Terry Cahill volunteers an answer while Cathy Capano and Judy Fehr study the text, examining Virgil's unique sentence structure and use of words.

History Classes Develop Well-informed, Active Citizens

Government is a creation of the people, and its essential power rests in the hands of the people. Students of government begin to see their personal responsibility as citizens of a democracy, and they realize the necessity of being well informed, interested, and above all, active participants in government. The complexities of the American form of government provide rich material for discussion and reports.

Economics is an intrinsic part of government, and the stability of any nation largely depends upon it. How do men earn their living? Where do taxes go? What causes inflation? These are only some of the questions that show how closely economics is tied to daily life. Through current events and the lectures of guest speakers, the students are challenged by the absolute necessity of being well informed in the present society.

Because the nations of the world are becoming more dependent on one another, tomorrow's citizens will need to know as much as possible about other countries. In foreign relations and geography, juniors and seniors study the people, government, geographical characteristics, history, and foreign domestic policy of their world neighbors. With a background of world awareness, students are more qualified to understand their own country and its problems.

Regular classwork is supplemented with visual aids, outside readings, individual research projects on related topics, and professional speakers.

American history student Eileen Voss enters into class discussion of current events.

In foreign relations, Senior Jody Murphy studies the major countries and their foreign policy in relation to the United States.

Young Biologists Seek Many Answers

Emphasizing the inquiry approach to science, Marian's biologists seek to answer many questions.

The sophomores are first introduced into the intricacies of life through the Biological Science Curriculum Study course (BSCS — yellow version). With the aid of the microscope, a whole new vision of life is revealed for the first time. This year the sophomores made some exciting discoveries, mutant-like paramecia, and photographed them with the aid of a Polaroid camera specially attached to the microscope.

Advanced Biology is elected by seniors interested in pursuing the science in greater depth. From a more extensive acquaintance with physiology, plant life, blood typing, and the use of the new transfer chambers in their tissue culture studies, they experience and understand science as an evolving, organic, growing study, rather than as a static, completed body of knowledge.

For the more gifted and qualified students from South Oakland County, the Cancer Research Institute, held at Marian for the first time last summer and again this summer under Sister Ann Margaret's direction, offers an opportunity for study of great depth.

Testing their own lung capacity with the spirometer are Ruth Shea, Madeline Jenkin, and Barb Thompson.

Originality Finds Creative Outlet in Art.

Self-expression Is Essential

Through the eyes of the artist, the world is transformed; even the details of everyday life become beautiful when the artist captures them forever in a moment. The Marian Art Department attempts to involve the students in the appreciation of the beautiful as well as to instruct them in the countless techniques used in art. The art course offered to all sophomores explores the basic elements of drawing and design. Juniors who wish to continue in art develop their talent in block printing and water color; seniors learn the complicated processes of silk screening and woodcut.

Slow patient work has its rewards. Bending over her work, Sharon Conner gives her design the finishing touches.

Students Acquire

First-year shorthand is like a new language with different symbols. Denice Brown ponders a lesson.

Practicing timed speed and accuracy typing are Nancy Sladowski, Roswitha Myszkier, Mary Elias, Julie Hiller, and Karen York.

Business Skills

Bookkeeping is a practical course, but very challenging. Cathy Lund, Sandy Halleck, and Sue Sinicola concentrate on a "balance-the-budget" lesson.

Shorthand hieroglyphics must be readable, so Marleen DiMatteo takes special care with her notes.

Girls Are Efficient in Bookkeeping, Shorthand, and Typing

(May 18, 1965)

Speed and accuracy, skill and efficiency: these are the aims of the business classes. Typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping are offered to juniors and seniors who are preparing for the business world or who are interested in developing these skills for their own personal use.

In Typing II, students use a variety of machines. Practice in justifying margins and setting copy for printing helps to prepare future office workers for specific jobs.

Practice in typing master copies and stencils of all types is another part of the training. The student either duplicates or mimeographs her own copies on machines available to her.

In Shorthand II, students use transcribing machines, record players, and tape recorders to help develop skill.

Basic principles of beginning office work in Bookkeeping I are supplemented with the aid of adding machines.

Having completed her course, the business student is prepared to apply for a position in an office.

In class, Kathleen McHugh, Elaine Horkins, Marty Sallows, and Kathy McPhail, aim for accuracy and speed in their typing exercises.

Home Ec Develops Domestic Arts

From the freshman course in Christian Family Living to the more advanced courses in textiles and foods, girls learn the domestic arts of a woman. With a knowledge of the details and mechanics of good grooming, the color wheel, the value and production of china and silver, students advance in the science of home economics.

Light muffins, homemade yeast breads, and assorted deserts brighten a freshman's life; upperclassmen busy themselves with preparing and serving full course dinners and luncheons.

In the room adjoining the kitchen, girls carefully measure and lay out materials and patterns for such advanced articles as suits, coats, dresses, and formals. A fashion show, coordinating the skills learned in these classes, highlights a satisfying and self-productive year in home economics.

Student Council Lends an Open Ear

Functioning primarily as an active, representative body of the entire school, the Student Council is organized on the plan of representatives from every homeroom, four officers, and Moderators Sister Hilaire and Sister Ignatius Mary. The Council listens, considers, and acts with the needs of the entire school in mind, especially in the areas of citizenship, education and social life.

This year's theme, "The Open Ear," was symbolized by a large blue ear on the cafeteria corridor bulletin board. "The Ear" not only heard, but also responded to the suggestions from the student body.

September marked the greatest turnout a record hop has ever had at Marian. From the proceeds of the Council's successful "Tree Hop," twenty-five trees of different varieties were planted around the school.

February brought a great social event, the Student Council dance, "Beyond the Fringe." Decorated with helium balloons and aluminum streamers as fringe, the gym was transformed into a fairyland.

Student Government Day is another project of the Council. All administration, scheduling, and teaching was the work of the students.

On Student Exchange Day, Marian participated with other private and public schools in the Birmingham area. An acquaintance with and a greater appreciation of other schools was the aim of the experience.

Becomes More Active and Meaningful

The pre-Fiesta assembly featured Mexican dancers Mary Anne Plezia and Lynn Daiek, with music by a Brother Rice group.

The Church of today is moving ahead in the spirit of aggiornamento and reform. In keeping with the refreshing ideas in the Church, the Student Spiritual Council has introduced many new activities and added a greater significance to established events.

One of the most important changes came in the organization of the Spiritual Council itself. In order to form a closer contact with the girls, representatives were elected from religion classes rather than from homerooms as in previous years.

With the advent of the new liturgy, the Council has sponsored innovations such as whole-wheat hosts and guitar accompaniment before the Masses at Marian. From this sprang the idea of Class Masses in which each class could share with their parents the real meaning of Christian worship.

Every person grows in love and awareness by going out to others. The Council provides countless opportunities for such action in the collection of stamps for the missions and the food drive for the Dominican Sisters of the Sick Poor. This year the annual event to raise money for the missions took on the Latin American theme of "Fiesta," since the proceeds were sent to missionaries in that area of the world.

Working on one of the Spiritual Council's main projects, the Christmas Drive, are Jean Scholl and Pat Schmitt.

Each year the Spiritual Council officers place a wreath of flowers on the head of the Virgin Mary in her month, May.

The art classes made decorations and sold creations such as the one Pat Doran is working on at the Fiesta.

Trying to throw a bean bag into the mouth of a bull are Fran Opie, Gail Vincunas, and Bonnie Vincunas.

Anxiously awaiting the results of the horse race are Mary Breault, Linda Ermel, Pam Paul, Pat Brosnan, Pam Gwynn, Kathy Gardner, Sandy Halleck.

A major preparation for the Fiesta was decorating the booths. Diane Sybeldon and Rita Reilly, precariously balanced, attach letters to streamers.

Fiesta Arouses a Latin-American Awareness

The jail, momentarily occupied by Ricky Hofmann, Sr. Ignatius Mary, Mary Herman, and Kathy Grigg amuses Sue Adams.

The annual Mardi Gras celebration took on a Fiesta air this year. The Student Spiritual Council planned the day around a Latin American theme because of the Archdiocesan mission project in Recife, which will involve the Immaculate Heart of Mary Community.

Pinatas, panchos, and sombreros decorated the gym; tortillas and chili dogs provided tasty luncheon fare.

Booths such as the pesos toss and the Santa Anita races drew large crowds of excited participants and onlookers. A special attraction was Sister Aquinata's stuffed-animals booth which netted over two hundred dollars for the missions.

In the spirit of spontaneous joy (so evident on days like this), each girl contributed her part to make the Fiesta a successful mission project.

"Barking" for the horse race, Martha Dunlay urges passers-by to place their bets before the excitement of the race begins.

School Government Day

Maturity, self-reliance, initiative; these are qualities every school hopes to develop in its students. Once a year, Marian students are given the opportunity to demonstrate these qualities in a real and effective way on Student Government Day. Sponsored by the Student Council, this day is operated entirely by student teachers and student administrators. Along with the creative initiative required in planning the classes, student teachers learn that teaching demands a great deal of work. Students often find their classes extremely interesting as well as beneficial, and prove their maturity by wholehearted support.

Sodalists Aim for Spiritual Growth

Sodality is a revolutionary Christian community. Its members are drawn together by the common attraction of a great ideal vitalized by divine life in Christ. By personal interaction with companions of like ideals, Sodalists are challenged to fulfill the work which Christ gave His Church to accomplish in this world.

In responding to this challenge, the members of the Marian Sodality have encouraged and sponsored various types of social action ranging from serving in the soup kitchens of the Catholic Worker to caring for orphans every Saturday. To share the joy of the Christian community, Sodalists held a Christmas party this year for orphans and children of underprivileged parishes.

Becoming a vital Christian includes learning ideas, as well as sharing them with others. For this reason the Sodality sponsors a delegation every year to the Summer School of Catholic Action, which is held in New York, Chicago or some other large city. Through weekly meetings, Sodalists intensify their awareness of the challenge of full Christian living, and through active participation in liturgical and personal prayer, with the extraordinary help of closed retreats, they obtain the strength to fulfill this challenge.

Social Action Personally Involves Many Students

Woman, by nature, is inclined to dedicate her ability and talents to the service of mankind. In order to intensify this spirit of sacrifice, many members of the senior sociology classes and Sodality groups offer voluntary services at various institutions in and around the Detroit area.

At the Sarah Fisher Home and the Pontiac Home for children, students assist in the rehabilitation of the children by helping to fulfill their need for love and attention.

The "good news of Christ" is brought to public school children by students who are involved in catechetical work.

Students also offer help and compassion to senior citizens at homes in this area. Through working in the Catholic Worker soup kitchen, students meet unemployment in the inner city.

In all types of volunteer work, students learn an invaluable lesson: they discover how to give themselves unselfishly through service to others.

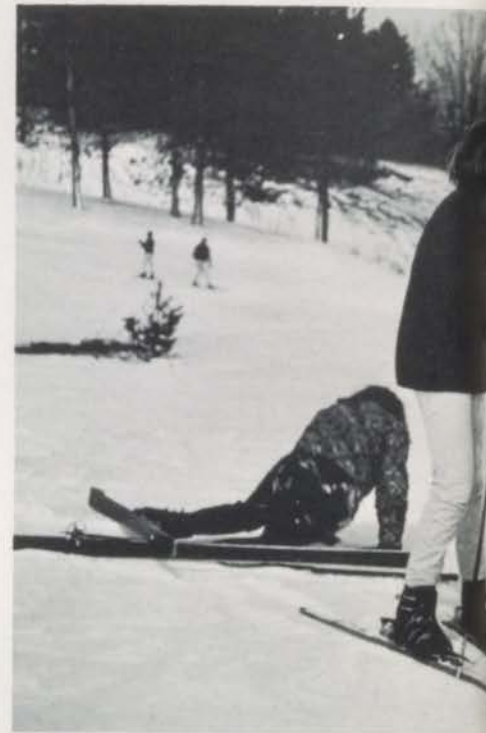

At the Christmas party for the orphans of the Saran Fisher Home, the final event was breaking the pinata filled with candy and toys.

G.A.A. Has Active Year, New Plans

New Teams Formed

This year Marian's Girls' Athletic Association opened with a new vitality and interest that gained momentum with each passing week. Sports ranged from the pains-taking accuracy of archery to a lively field hockey. Basketball enthusiasts didn't squander their talents; several teams were formed under Coach Mrs. Grant, and varsity and junior varsity alike played many exciting games both in and out of school.

Along with springtime and flowers came the rugged outdoor sports of soccer, softball, and tennis. After teams were organized the girls went to work practicing and playing with a sportsmanship spirit. In victory or defeat, optimism was the attitude.

New Club Looks to Career in Nursing

Future nurses, Mary Ann Sudz and Barb Hansen make tray favors to delight patients at nearby hospital.

This year marks the beginning of a Future Nurses Club at Marian. Since the first meeting in November, Sister Mary Sebastian and Mrs. Krause, moderators, have organized and planned many activities. Guest speakers have discussed nursing and other medical fields at the meetings. As a group, the club toured St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in February. In order to receive the club pin at the end of the year, each girl must attend all meetings and field trips and interview one person experienced in the medical profession.

Future Nurses make a personal contact with Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Sherrod, who describe aspects of the girls' future profession.

Debaters Join St. Thomas More Forum

Obviously enjoying herself is Gayla Brandt, debating at a school assembly on nuclear disarmament.

Miss Rosemarie Hordos and Sister Veronita have organized the first Marian Debate Club this year. The club members have competed in the St. Thomas More Forum and have recently joined the Michigan Forensic Association. Together with the Brother Rice Debate Club, they sponsored an assembly in January at which the topic of nuclear disarmament was explored. To provide funds for their treasury, the debaters conceived a unique idea: they held a shoe-shine in the spring.

During a consultation on the proposition of nuclear disarmament, Dave Canine slightly disagrees with his partner, Mary Herman.

Mothers' Club Plays a Vital Role

Parent-faculty tea provides an excellent opportunity to meet the Sisters in a pleasant atmosphere.

An integral part of the good life is the Marian Mothers' Club. The board, working throughout the year with Mother Mary Aquin and the other members, plans and carries out various activities. On their social calendar for this year were a Night with Father Dustin, the freshmen card party, and the annual fashion show. Turning all their profits back into the school, they have provided this year such outstanding aids as televisions for each room, a fully equipped TV studio, and lights for the parking lot.

Another popular project is their sponsorship of an upperclassman to the Wolverine Girls' State, a workshop held each summer at the University of Michigan.

Most importantly, the mothers give their time to work as secretaries in the office and as cashiers in the cafeteria.

Dedicated, enthusiastic, inconspicuous, this mothers' organization is truly a vital part of Marian.

An evening concert by Father Dustin, the banjo-playing priest, enables Mothers' Club to buy more books for the library.

Excellence Is Goal of National Honor Society

Membership Is Select, Activities Are Varied

Mother Mary Aquin inducts the members of the National Honor Society, reminding them of the ideals of the organization.

The National Honor Society bases its membership on the four important qualities of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. As an organization actively engaged in all areas of scholastic life, the Society sponsors college talks and joins other schools in college-centered activities. While scholarship demands excellence, the qualities of leadership, character, and service are also equally emphasized in the National Honor Society member.

At the annual Induction Ceremony, sophomores who qualify become probationary members, and juniors and seniors register as active members. In this ceremony, which is one of the highlights of the year, every member pledges the desire to seek truth, to engage in worthy service, and to lead in establishing the ideals of the Society.

Choral Performs at School, Local Functions

Choral attracts more students than any other extracurricular organization. Although it demands much of its members, it offers many rewarding experiences. The three choral groups include freshman, sophomore, and junior-senior, who combined to give a Christmas concert for the entire school. At the request of the Mayor, the senior choral sang in Birmingham one night before Christmas. They also joined with several other schools at the lighting of the Christmas tree in Detroit. The climax of the year was the Spring Concert and the Adjudication in which the Choral participates with many other choral groups.

With simple decorations, the choral presents the Christmas concert.

Many hours are spent practicing pitch and intonation for each song the junior-senior choral prepares for a concert.

Model U.N. Provides Knowledge of Countries and World Affairs

"Will the third annual Marian Model United Nations please come to order! Delegates, please take your seats and clear the floor!"

Another exciting and intellectual extracurricular activity opened at Marian. Costumed representatives of fifty-two member nations caucused, discussed, and debated on such important issues as the seating in the Security Council, a U.N. police force, Yemen, and the crisis in the Belgian Congo. At one point early in the session, President Colleen Taylor and Secretary-General Doris Flaherty faced a walkout of both the Eastern and Western blocs when the chair ruled that a proposal calling for enforcement of Articles 17 and 19 of the Charter was out of order.

Typical of the spirit of the two-day affair were the frequent and somewhat violent demonstrations staged by students from Brother Rice and Marian. They picketed several of the displays set up in the lounge and corridors and caused hurried activity on the part of the pages and sergeants-at-arms to remove them from the General Assembly floor.

Through it all, the judges quietly and systematically checked the delegates on points of research, parliamentary knowledge, general appearance, and leadership. Tallying the points, they presented their lists of best delegation and outstanding delegates to the assembly and the many spectators. At the close of the session, seventeen happy students received the ovations of their excited, appreciative classmates.

Paper Reflects Student Life

Columns such as "Club Clues," "Tassel Talk," "News and Views," and "The Open Ear" add interest to the Marianews, Marian's monthly newspaper. Hoping to present a true picture of Marian '65, staff reporters explore every aspect of student life. Proms, retreats, speakers, classes, school and other activities receive full coverage in the paper. Editorials, cartoons and letters to the editor encourage student interest in school activities.

This year juniors hold the main positions on the staff, but seniors and juniors alike contribute to the reporting. Student compositions from all grades are always welcome. Activities of the staff include reporting, proof reading, layout and paste-up.

Yearbook Captures 1964-65

Last year thirteen girls took on an overwhelming job that would entail many hours of hard work, frustrations, and anxieties. As the year grew shorter and the deadline continued to get closer, the staff members drew layouts, wrote copy and cutlines, and snapped pictures in the hope that this yearbook would well represent 1964-1965. Throughout the year, our photographers roamed in and out of classes, meetings, assemblies, and special events, trying to capture the spirit of every incident in candid shots. Nights, as well as days, were used by copy writers who pondered each line. Pressures mounted with passing days, but in the end, teamwork and grim determination found a way, and the yearbook became a reality.

One sure sign of a good yearbook is a crowd of girls in the corridor clamoring to autograph pictures or write notes of farewell to their friends.

A good yearbook depends on its pictures and its layout. Doris Flaherty and Anne Nemetz spent countless hours deciding which pictures to use and how to place them artistically on the pages.

Assemblies Are Educational and Entertaining

To cultivate new interests and to supplement regular classes, an assembly is held each Friday at third hour. Often one of the student organizations plans and carries through an informative and entertaining program. This year for the first time, each of the classes had an opportunity to show all facets of its student life to the rest of the school in its own assembly. The climax of these third-hour programs is the annual honors assembly held at the end of the school year.

Marian Theatre Presents Four

One Act Plays

One of the young Sisters working at an orphanage in "One Red Rose" is Eileen Cantrell.

Drama is a living art. As a means of creative expression, it reflects the universal quality of man. The Marian Theatre opens to its members the world of the stage through the entertainment presented at each meeting, and the participation in the yearly drama festival.

This year Marian and Brother Rice worked jointly in the staging of four one-act plays: "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Pot Boiler," "One Red Rose," and "The Devil and Daniel Webster." The Festival served as an elimination contest in which the "Pot Boiler" and "The Devil and Daniel Webster" won the honor of going on to compete in the annual Genesian Drama Festival.

With enthusiasm and spirit, the young actors and actresses from the two schools produced a new musical this spring, entitled "First Impressions." The fun of building sets and applying make-up more than compensated for the long hours of practice.

There is perhaps no greater void than the feeling of the new and unknown as experienced by a freshman as she walks into her homeroom the first time. But the newness doesn't last long. Although there are almost three hundred students from several surrounding parishes and each girl has a different family background, these differences do not inhibit friendship, but rather add to the experience of meeting new people. After the initial step forward, freshmen discover that it is hard to remain static since there are many projects and activities to involve them, all of which absorb time, develop responsibility, and lend to maturity.

Dads Enjoy Variety Show at Dance

Daughters Entertain With Novel Skits and Songs While Dads Rest.

One activity all freshmen look forward to is a night out with their fathers at the Dad Daughter Dance. The girls made all the arrangements. Their theme was "Down on the Farm." Decorations around the walls depicting different farm scenes carried out the theme. The dads, who usually are not quite sure what to expect, found themselves doing the old fashioned barn dance and the modern "monkey." In order that the fathers would not get too exhausted, the girls planned a program to entertain them. Even though the dads had their doubts, when the night was over, all agreed that it was very enjoyable.

Daughters try to teach their dads a new dance, the "monkey."

Freshmen Begin New Year, New Activities

"Modern parents" Lynn Luddy and Sally Young show their teenage daughter, Linda Simms, they are "in the groove" by doing the twist. Linda is horrified; the twist is "passe."

Entertaining their fathers, Pam Messina and Joyce Murphy act out the familiar song, "Wouldn't It Be Lovely?"

High school is quite a change from the elementary school. Freshmen experience changing classes, different teachers, and the large numbers of all girls. These adjustments are easily made, but a new world of activities awaits the Marian freshman. No sooner has the freshman settled down when the Fall Field Day arrives. Spirit and teamwork placed this year's class second among the other three. Later in the fall, the yearbook drive challenged all the classes. Their victory merited a coke party in the gym and an afternoon of fun together. Extracurricular activities, both individual and clubs, fit into an organized program. Class projects included a Father-Daughter dance in January and a social mixer in the spring. In May, an assembly program was planned and presented by freshmen. This was their opportunity to present their talents to the faculty and the rest of the student body.

At the freshman party, Paula Gills and Karen Fremuth entertain their fellow classmen with a folk song.

Activities and Projects

Relief that she is no longer a freshman and the hope that she soon will be an upperclassman are the feelings that a sophomore experiences. She is no longer new; the school is no longer strange; the security that comes with familiarity is there to stay. She acts with a new-found confidence. With exuberance she conquers new subjects: American literature, art, and biology. Her school life falls into a pattern, pleasantly interrupted by new clubs and activities. She expands her circle of friends, and with all of this she grows.

Sophomore Basketball Teams Fight For Class Championship

Homeroom period is anything but dull for the sophomores this year, for the excitement of basketball has captured the entire class. Each homeroom selected a team and gave it a flashy name. The rest of the homeroom formed a cheering section to urge their team on to victory. Competition began shortly after Christmas and ended in mid-March. The Jolly Blue Giants (201) defeated The Big G's of Room 301. Captain Crunch and her Crew (312) blanked the Crispy Critters 14-0 and in the semi-finals handed the Jolly Blue Giants their first defeat. Mary and the Pacemakers (302) beat Yipes Stripes (204) by a single point. They went on to hand The Undertakers (311) a 6-0 defeat. In the final game played on March 18, Mary and the Pacemakers defeated Captain Crunch and her Crew 11-9 in an overtime period with the entire Sophomore Class in attendance.

Dad-Daughter Dance Holds Fun For All

During a square dance, Karen Farabaugh and fellow sophomores join hands and circle around Mr. Callaghan.

The enjoyment of the sophomore Dad-Daughter dance is captured in the enthusiastic faces of Joan Tisdale and her father.

"A Night on the Town" was the theme of the second annual Dads and Daughters' Dance for the class of 1967. On Friday, February 19, about two hundred dads and their daughters danced everything from a waltz to the Virginia Reel. Decorations, including the skyline of New York, added to the nightclub motif. Midway through the evening, the girls treated their dads to a talent show. Everyone enjoyed the singing of "The Embrionics," a barbershop quartet, and a solo by Patti Gillen. Mary Ann Plezia and Paula Gladchun danced to the theme music of "West Side Story." The dads enjoyed themselves so much that they left the dance asking, "When will they hold the next dance?"

After a "night on the town" with their dads, Sophomores Jacquelyn Rougeau, Candy Perry, and Pam Boyle could convince anyone that the dad-daughter event was a great success. The fun-filled evening included a talent show and everything from square dancing to the twist.

"The Cruel War," a favorite ballad among folk singers today, was one of the songs Debbie Thompson, Barb Barrett and Karen McKenna sang at the sophomore hootenanny.

"Beatles" Maureen Phillips, Sue Jones, Mary Desimpel, and Aimee Hess entertain with "She Loves You."

Sophomores Colleen Kocsis, Terry White, Mary Campbell, and Sandy Jatcko contribute to their hootenanny with "Kumbia."

With the song "Five Foot Two," sophomores Sue Spiroff, Barb Frontier, Jean Radley and Paula Pendergrass changed the tempo by taking the audience back to the wild, roaring '20's.

Sophomore Class Holds Fund-raising Activity

Proceeds Pay for Yearbook Ad

On Saturday, November 21, the Sophomore Class sponsored a hootenanny. With the proceeds from this activity, the class paid for their ad in the Yearbook. Most of the singers were local talent, that is from either Marian or Brother Rice. Sister Ignatius Mary's brother from the University of Detroit High School, however, received special acclaim for his folk-singing talent. Approximately 250 Marian sophomores and Brother Rice boys attended. Dancing followed the hootenanny. Debbie Nolan, sophomore class president, labelled this activity "a huge success."

Growth is a process of expansion, broadening and deepening, and bringing with it a greater experience of all that is good in life. Each year adds to the wisdom of the past, and offers an exciting hope for the future. Junior year is a "time in between," when one is old enough to taste a little of the delight of freedom, and yet not so old that one must accept the heavy responsibilities of being "adult." It is a time of discoveries which open a vast new world of ideas and relationships. It is an important step toward maturity, and toward the realization of the tremendous potential in each person.

From the first class meeting to the Junior Prom, every girl finds herself united by that unexplainable common bond of expectation. Awakened to innumerable complexities of life, the junior moves one step further in her pursuit of excellence, toward her ideal.

Juniors Hold Prom in the Land of Camelot

Planning began early in February. The Junior Commission chose the medieval theme of "Camelot" for their dance and scheduled it for late May.

Chairmen Marcia Lennox and Regina Foster supervised the preparations scheduling the "Fugitives" to provide the music for the dance. The gym was turned into a storybook castle with an artificial drawbridge. Both the girls and their escorts enjoyed dancing and table-hopping under the banner-hung ceiling. Old-time elegance, charm, and beauty were the order for the evening of fun and junior memories.

It is hard for Elaine Horkins to concentrate on academics when she has other things to think about — like the Junior Prom.

The tired feet of Jody Cronin and Regina Foster at the end of the Junior Prom is a good indication of a very successful affair.

Juniors Are Active In Many Areas

Participation Includes M.U.N. and Class Assembly

Under the effective leadership of the Class Commission, the Junior Class moves ahead with greater unity and purpose. The many activities of the year demand a constant supply of creative planning. Juniors meet this challenge with talent and energy.

This year, as in the past, the class was well represented at the Model United Nations held in November. With long hours of planning and heated debate behind them, junior delegates represented their countries on a series of current issues.

In addition to their excellence in world affairs, juniors displayed their talent in areas close at hand. Their assembly, presented in April, invited all to "Meet the Juniors." Various aspects of junior life gave an interesting atmosphere to the program.

In March, a day of community enabled many of the juniors to build a closer relationship to God, to those around them, indeed, to all Christians.

A discussion of last-minute plans with another delegate is helpful to Barbara Bednarz before a caucus at the Model United Nations begins.

Activities Complete Senior Life

The yearbook having arrived after many anxious days, Leslie Mahler writes a short note to Carol Obrecht. Many corners and doorways were used for hurried autographs.

Ours, the good life . . . ours, the Marian Way . . . With un-failing optimism the Class of 1965 moved into its final year.

Senior year brought caps, gowns, and rings, traditional symbols of the upperclassmen; it brought the weekend retreat at Port Sanilac, the semi-formal Christmas dance, victory on field day, a trip to Lansing. Agenda for the class meetings included plans and announcements for graduation portraits, the senior assembly, class picnic, senior prom and commencement exercises. On the class bulletin board, girls signed up for senior-sponsored social action work; they gathered to read notices of scholarship awards and college acceptances. Always there was something going on.

Term papers and research projects occupied much of the senior's time. She read stacks of magazines and books in preparation for her classes, in preparation for her future.

The Marian senior grew. Exuberant with life, she laughed with the friendly sea of blue; she matured in quiet solitude, in slow revelation, through womanly contemplation. She found the good life, the Marian Way.

At a senior class meeting, many candid opinions are expressed in the faces of Mary Chaput, Lynn Bailey, and Nancy Glass.

Commission Organizes Senior Class Activities

The idea of a Class Commission received an enthusiastic response from all the seniors, but especially from the four officers who now would receive help in planning and executing senior activities. At regular meetings through the year, the group discussed arrangements for events and projects such as Field Day, Christmas Dance, Senior Mass, Senior Assembly, and fundraising for the Catholic Worker soup kitchen. This standing committee was indeed a support to the officers. By the end of its first year, the Commission had proved its worth; it had played a vital role in senior activities.

"We Three and It," a folk-singing group comprised of Diane Taylor, Ruth Maly, Marianne McLaughlin ("It"), and Donna Turner, entertains the student body with "One More Town" at the senior assembly.

Seniors Begin Last Year with Ceremonies

Caps are Presented Rings are Blessed

Part of the excitement of senior year is receiving caps and gowns. On the evening of September 29, the seniors were officially "capped" by homeroom moderators. Parents of seniors were invited to attend the ceremony where they had an opportunity to share with their daughters this important event and to hear a presentation of the calendar of events for the coming year. At an informal tea held in the cafeteria following the ceremony, parents and daughters met friends and faculty members.

Just as significant as a cap and gown is the senior ring. This coveted mark of distinction the seniors wore for the first time in September. Rings were blessed at First Friday Mass in November, as a symbol of unity.

Seniors Win Field Day Trophy For Third Year!

"Hand in Hand" Captures Spirit and Victory for Seniors

"Hand in hand, as we all march along, as we all march along together . . ." Thus the seniors marched to victory on the fall field day. Wearing the white glove as a symbol of the hand, they paraded to the back of the grounds where they participated in races, egg-throwing contests, and tug-of-war battles.

The sun shone; the day was warm; the class pulsed to the quickening cry, "Seniors, seniors!" With the exuberance that is characteristic of the good life at Marian, with a strong determination to make this final fall field day for the seniors the most triumphant, the class officers and commissioners led the girls as "varsity cheerleaders."

When the day closed, a group of happy seniors received the trophy of victory for the third year! Then, en masse, the class filed into the chapel for a final "thank you" for another good day.

Retreat Increases Self-understanding

A quiet shore, a pile of rocks, a chilled air provide Mary Ann Hartwell with the climate for meditation.

Standing at the water's edge, the world seems the infinity it is. Sand warmed by the sun spreads beyond the range of vision. Stars illumine a dark beach and glisten on the incessantly rolling waves. In all this there is unfathomed beauty and order — the reflection of the Creator.

This was the setting for the senior retreat at Port Sanilac in the fall of the year. Because of the large number of seniors who wished to make the retreat, three separate weekends were arranged, each with a different retreat master. The idea of community became a vivid reality as every girl realized the value of sharing her most significant gift — herself. Walks along the beach, a conversation that opens unimagined areas of thought, hootenannies under the stars brought the seniors closer together in their search for a place in the whole of life.

Each group of retreatants strengthened not only the common bond among themselves, but also their relation to God. The Mass, the central act of worship, was celebrated in the fullest beauty as the girls participated in offertory processions, communion songs, and kiss of peace. The silent understanding among those who had shared this experience bore witness to the dynamic impact of such a retreat.

During the Offertory procession, Denice Brown and Cathy Lund place their hosts on the altar.

The serving of the bread by Father DeWitt to Mary Gray, Chris Miller, and Carol Cederleaf signifies family unity.

A bright sun rising over Lake Huron in the chilly morning fills retreatants with awe, mystery, and tranquility.

Homecoming Chooses Marian Queen

The announcement of Brothers Rice's first homecoming plans kindled interest at Marian. The girls formed committees to design and decorate the Rice gym and the individual class floats. Interest surged as many Marian girls were nominated for the Homecoming Court.

The weekend opened with the semi-formal alumni dance where Queen Diane Casalou and her court were crowned. The following day a bonfire, pep rally, and sock hop fired the spirit of Rice enthusiasts. Sunday was the summation of all the planning and work.

In orange and black decorated cars, fans paraded to the football field where the floats were judged amid the cheers of the classes.

Diane Casalou summed up the weekend for Marian by expressing her pleasure and gratitude in being a part of Brother Rice's first homecoming.

Seniors and Guests Celebrate Holidays

Amid the joyous days of Christmas vacation, the seniors prepared for their winter dance. Because of the appropriateness of the theme, "Winter Whisper," the music of a local band, and the enthusiasm of the guests, the dance was a success.

The Class of 1965 introduced several new features, including a reception line of the class officers and chaperones, and senior-sponsored guest couples from other schools and Marian underclasses.

The lively music provided by the "Fugitives" at the Senior Christmas dance encourages all to "swing out."

Foreign Exchange Student Leads American Life

Talking to Mirjam Kuipers, our red-haired exchange student from Holland, is quite an experience. Attractive, intelligent, outgoing, Mirjam speaks enthusiastically of her arrival in the United States: "One of the first impressions was the big cars, the beautiful expressways and their complexity, the kindness of Americans and their pride in their freedom and history."

"Several days later I entered Marian High School. There is much closer contact between the teacher and the student here. Although for the first three weeks it was very hard to understand teachers, I received the help of many Marian students. Now after some months, I feel like a Marian student who is proud of her school and likes it. And I really like the American way of life."

Senior Activities

Stimulate Unity

Seniors of 1965 lost no time in getting activities under way. At a class meeting on the beginning day of school, officers outlined the events of the year. To provide more time for activities, they held two evening meetings. By early November girls had formed committees for the class will, prophecy, song and banner, gift, elections, and graduation activities.

Responding to Mother Mary Aquin's call for class assemblies, seniors planned and rehearsed their production. They also considered suggestions for their winter dance and prom, the field days, and their social-action project. Organizing a workweek during activity-period meetings, the girls planned to renovate Lou Murphy's Catholic Worker Soup Kitchen.

At the first evening class meeting, Joanne DiLoretto explains the senior ski trip as the officers and the other seniors listen attentively.

"Meet the Seniors" at Class Assembly

Rosemary Zoller

From the initial planning stage to the actual presentation, the senior assembly was fun.

For an entire month the girls worked to create amusing and entertaining acts which were auditioned by Miss McCaffrey and Sister Judine.

Rehearsals were few and hilarious. Last-minute changes added excitement and tension. All seniors were caught up in the enthusiasm and drive of those last few days before "opening night."

When the curtains finally parted, the students and seniors' guests were surprised and delighted at the ingenuity and freshness of the girls in adapting a Shirley Temple song, "We're Not Babies Anymore" to the introduction of their assembly. Incorporating the spiritual, intellectual, and social aspects of their life, the girls moved easily from one skit to another, highlighting the most dramatic scenes in the program, and ending with a final song.

During a toothpaste commercial, Michelle Court demonstrates brushing techniques with the aid of an unseen friend.

Shirley Temple (Mary Ann Hartwell) and her friends inform underclassmen that seniors are now grown-up.

A special Chevrolet we'll practically custom tailor for you

There are nearly 200 custom touches you can have us add to make this Impala Super Sport as unique and personal as you like.

There's an AM-FM Stereo radio you can add. A black vinyl roof cover. Soft-Ray tinted glass. Four-Season air conditioning. Four-speed stick. Seven-position Comfortilt steering wheel. Sintered-metallic brakes. Tachometer. Even a special suspension, if you like.

Your Chevrolet dealer has a book listing everything. He'll be glad to show it to you.

But before you leave this page thinking a Super Sport isn't much until you add to it, let us assure you that it comes with considerably more than the bare necessities.

You get front bucket seats. A center console with a compartment that locks and a rally type electric clock. The deep twist carpeting runs wall to wall and even part way up the doors.

So you could hardly describe it as stripped down.

One last pleasant note we'd like to end on. It's about price.

This is a custom-tailored Chevrolet we're talking about. So it's like ordering a suit from a wonderful little old tailor who hasn't heard what those shops with the fancy names are charging for the same thing. . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit, Michigan.

If you've correctly filled in the spaces above, you may have already answered "yes" to the question.

It's for sure you're curious. You're a self-starter who takes pleasure in tackling problems. (We know because you just did!) That gives us something in common.

We at Delco-Remy are always solving "puzzles," looking into the unknown for answers that can improve our products. And why not? We're geared for it.

Our new Engineering and Research facility in Anderson provides our problem-probing team with the most completely equipped center of its kind in the world—including an electron microscope that can magnify samples up to 200,000 diameters... and a spectrograph that enables us to analyze materials for their metallic elements to an accuracy of one part in a million.

Maybe you'd like to develop things like electronic ignition systems for cars or control devices for missiles. The challenge is great, of course. But so are the rewards and accomplishments.

If you feel at home in Indiana... and in a scientific atmosphere, you'll be right at home at Delco-Remy. Look us up after college. We'll keep a couple of problems on ice for you.

(Solution: 43. Aptitude, 47. For, 54. Science)

This will help.

If you are planning to go to college, this folder is "must" reading for you and your parents. It has a checklist of personal expenses to help you plan your college budget. And it tells how National Bank of Detroit's College Loan Plan can provide money for up to four years of college with as long as six years to repay in monthly instalments.

To get your copy of "Financing a College Education," call WO 5-6000 and ask for "College Plan" or write . . .

What do
Einstein, Richard Petty, Hippocrates, Columbus, Copernicus have in common?

Bubble bursting.

Take Richard Petty. This concept bugged him: that Plymouths didn't win long distance stock car races.

Petty, in his competition-equipped No. 43, burst the whole bubble. He finished first in the 1964 Daytona 500—and set a new track record in the bargain! This was the first of many wins that made him the 1964 NASCAR Champion.

The Daytona race is tough. 500 miles around the fastest track in the world. It takes guts and stamina and engineering superiority to win that race. Superiority developed through years of research and testing on the proving grounds and in the laboratory. Engineering reflected in our 1965 showroom cars.

What bubbles bugged the others? Time is an absolute; evil spirits cause disease; the world is flat; the sun revolves around the earth. You knew that all along.
