We form our lives at this school. We ride its buses . . . climb its stairs . . . participate in fire drills. We eat our lunches in its cafeteria . . . share the excitement, sorrow and joy of its football games. Wherever we go, whatever we do, this school has a part in . . . It shares the blame or credit that we earn, so it influences us now. When we leave, it cannot follow; only its lessons and experience. It is a school after all . . . an American school . . . Our school.

One school on the globe - the one that matters

This is a school . . . An American school . . .

Our school. Brick and steel halls of learning dedicated to our Future, although dominating our present; people with the wise and the understanding . . . Filled with and fulfilling the exuberance and vitality that is Youth. It is Our school because we learn here . . . laugh here . . . run in the halls here. Here we sit in classes . . . wave to Friends . . . slam a locker door — Our locker door.

We are a cross section of American Youth

We are American Youth. We dance and skip and go to the movies. We play baseball, buy records, and simply die if we can't use the car. We swim and collect at the drive-in or drug store, and build things. Because we are American Youth, we select one of the innumerable opportunities open to us. Here we learn the things which our future and our contribution is based upon. Here our friends and teachers give us encouragement and wish us well. Our school whiles our time away day by day until an adolescence is gone and our innocence is hung up on a nail by the door: Forgotten.

We take advantage of this school, and a great deal of pride in it. We support it, and defend it, and guard its traditions jealously. We distinguish it from other schools by our attendance here. We try to leave an impression on this school with our lives, so our time here will have some value and our names will proudly grace its record books for all the world to see.

Because we are American Youth, we of the Waterlog staff wish to present the American Youth as he is to himself and his peers. Because he is so many things, we have to present him in parts, the part of him that is typical and stereotyped and insecure, and the part which is free-thinking and individual that he is becoming. We would like to recognize the fact that Youth is individual, groups of youths are collections of individuals, and individual groups: clubs, social circles, schools, are the heart and soul of the force and the energy which is American Youth.

He is outlived by our supreme admiration

John F. Kennedy

As American youth, absorbing and being absorbed into our surroundings, we are irrevocably involved in the workings of the nation; of the world in which we live. By our birthright as Americans, we are representatives of our nation's policies and ideals; secure in the knowledge that our country is strong and free, and that our leaders are the best available.

As American youth, we felt that our late president, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, projected an image of a youthful, energetic, progressive nation that we were proud to try to live up to. We respected him, and basked in the laurels he earned for us as a peaceful, free people.

And, as American youth, were struck with shock and horror when we received the news — many of us over the school public address system — of his death on November 22, 1963. Removal of his tremendous leadership has merely made his light shine brighter — to illuminate our path.

WHO WE ARE We are a group

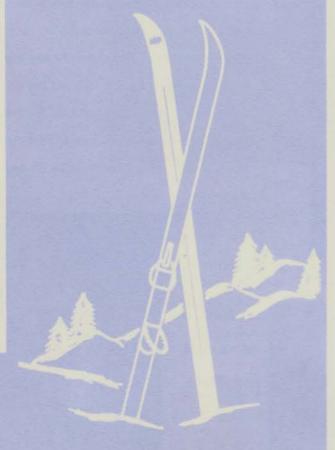

We are American youth — immature impressions En Masse. We are a collective noun, with a thousand faces and ten thousand fears. We are a group, emitting group sounds and talking group talk. Our group behavior is designed to make us fit in and not stand out. Our actions are not our own but they're acceptable. We submit to pressure, not realizing that we help to create it. We march along in step, building up to a sharp turn and a march away in our own direction.

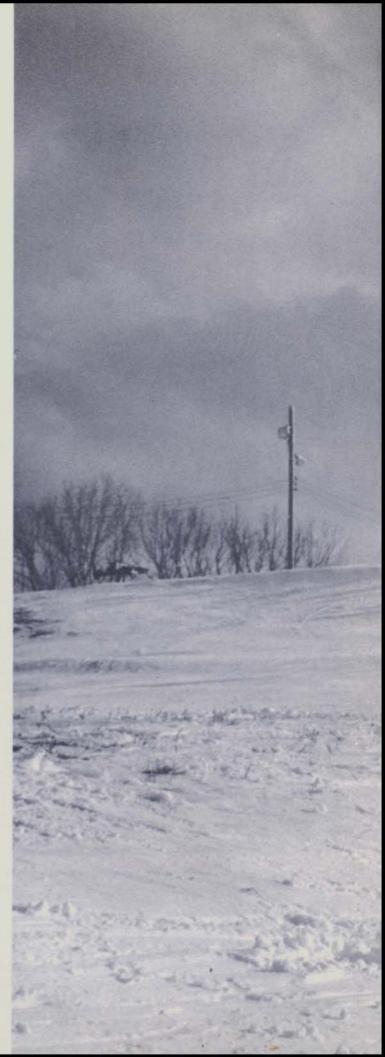

We are individuals

We are energy, and emotion, and several phrases of expression, which has fostered its own ideals and values, reactions and ambitions. We are drawn out centrifugally by the force of our circle pulling away from itself. We wear individuality like armor, and carry our ideas before us like a shield. We are self-sufficient and proud and we can shake off criticism with the same readiness with which we absorb encouragement.

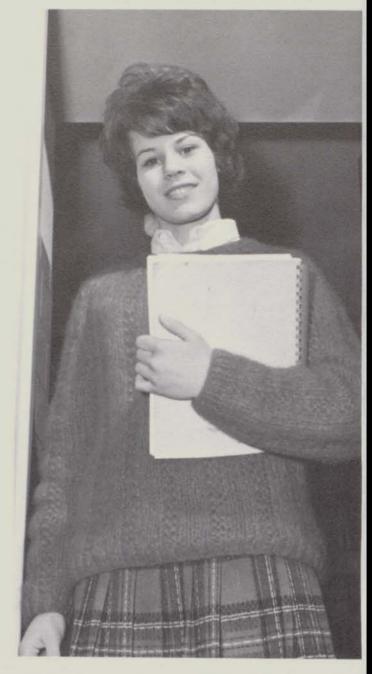

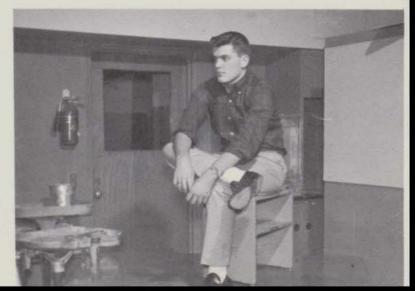

Determined to be heard, we are uninhibited and outspoken. We ascend to the stage of experience to protect our aspirations to reality, youth alone providing the sound and fury, only to fall, exhausted and chastened, ready to make what impressions we may upon the society which has made so many impressions upon us. We are the genesis of a proud movement — the movement of a proud genesis.

We are secure

Trying to improve our education facilities is just one of the many jobs of the Board of Education. Setting off the year is the proposed new addition to Waterford Township High School costing approximately 500,000 dollars. Throughout the year our Board of Education makes many decisions which in turn benefit the faculty and students of WTHS.

Administration provides leadership

Mr. Paul O'Neill, Principal

and guidance

Giving leadership and guidance to WTHS students provides a full time job for principal, Mr. Paul O'Neill. The energy that keeps WTHS alive and pulsating comes from this man's interest in his

Miss Helen Bulla, Assistant Principal

Students come to school every day with problems; waiting to hear them is Miss Helen Bulla, assistant principal. She has been a part of this school for many years, attending sports meets and other student activities in addition to fulfilling her administrative responsibilities. She is an active part of WTHS.

Counselors' work is never done

Counselor, Mr. Richard Powell, helps students with many things every day in WTHS.

It may be a personal, vocational, or academic problem that students have, but whatever it is, a counselor is always ready to hear it. WTHS's five counselors are willing to help students find a solution to these problems. In addition to solving problems, counselors are kept busy filling out applications for scholarships and finding out the scores of the National Merit Test and the California Mental Maturity tests.

Mrs. Elsie Carter, counselor, looks for a student's file.

Counselor, Mr. Byron J. Merritt is always ready to help the students of WTHS.

Mr. Donald Arsen, counselor, is seen talking to Larry Carlson.

Miss Patricia Hott, counselor, has a busy schedule, helping seniors with scholarships.

Efficient office staff aids WTHS students

Answering the telephone is just one of Mrs. Ileane Buckner's jobs.

Mrs. Julie Hoffman, is seen selling a pack of paper in the bookstore.

Checking to see if you're absent is Mrs. Iva Potter, attendance secretary.

Counseling secretary, Mrs. Shirley Vaughn, is filling out a college application.

Running off announcements is Mrs. Carol Studt, office manager.

WTHS's office staff is made up of individuals working as a group to keep this school running smoothly. The bookstore, attendance office, and main office serve students many ways. From paper in an emergency to morning announcements, and finding out how many days you've been absent, is the job of our office staff. The office staff does many things for the well being of our school.

Cafeteria staff provides nutrition for WTHS

row — Molly Kantarian, Beulah Sutton, Irene Statton, Eleanor Hunt, Azaba Limban, and Mae Keiser.

Each day our cafeteria staff provides a well balanced meal for both students and faculty. A reasonable price of thirty cents is charged for this hot lunch. If for some reason students don't like what the lunch consists of, on the other side of the cafeteria there is served a second choice. Hamburgers and french fries are served every day for those who prefer. Both lunches include dessert and milk.

Looking for a cookie recipe is Mrs. Molly Kantarian, food consultant.

Maintenance staff keeps halls ready for students

One of the things that makes us proud of our school is that it is always kept up. This is due to the fine crews of maintenance men who keep it nice for us to use.

Harold Campbell, head engineer. Charles Woon, and Elmer Peters make up the day crew of the maintenance staff.

Warm smiles, encouragement with authority

A gentle, prodding hand and a patient but challenging Voice. A little emotion and a lot of Dedication. A guardian of the mind while an advocate of human Understanding, they share our failures and our triumphs with us.

They earn Respect as they earned their right to teach: through patience, courage, wisdom, and by trying to learn something from each Student under their influence.

They juggle hundreds of Futures every day and dare not drop one, nor leave it suspended. When they have Taught us all they can, they show us how to Learn more than they can teach — and they Inspire us with a Desire to learn and a Confidence that we can learn. They do not admit us to the storehouse of Knowledge, but they give us the key and point toward the Door.

Working together to check the lights for a dramatics performance are speech teachers, Mr. Gilbert Bergsrud and Miss Anne Hobart.

Instruction

Mrs. Patricia Poteet, besides teaching her English classes, finds time to be an advisor to the Student Council.

English is the backbone for the American language. Teaching proper English is just one of the many jobs of Mr. Theodore Kazanis, WTHS English teacher.

In addition to teaching Latin I and II and presiding over a study hall, Mr. John Makowski also finds time in his busy schedule to coach the wrestling squad.

in English, Latin, French

They communicate communication to us: passing along familiar thoughts in a foreign language; understanding that we must understand.

They use languages which flourished when ours was still evolving through use and misuse.

They teach us to create, as well as appreciate literature. Their progress is parallel to ours; they can go no farther than we carry their message: that which they have communicated to us.

New to WTHS this year, Mrs. Sandra Parsons, English teacher, enjoys teaching English to Waterford students.

WTHS English teachers, Mrs. Isabel Venie, Mrs. Yvette Heitzeg, and Mrs. Arden Newell, look over an article in the Practical English magazine.

Not only is a knowledge of the French language necessary for Miss Antoinette Sabatine and Mr. Keith Garnett, but they also must be amateur engineers in order to operate the language lab.

Pausing with a smile of relief after helping students to meet a copy deadline is Mrs. Barbara Shupe, journalism teacher.

"Well," asks Mr. William Burns of two other English teachers, Mr. Finn Roed and Mr. Donald Aikens, "do you think this composition deserves an 'A' or a 'B'?"

An essential part of a high school education is history. Mrs. Marina Vackro teaches American History to WTHS students.

Discovering our world

With a busy teaching schedule of both Commercial Law and American History, Mr. John Tezak finds a moment for a little relaxation.

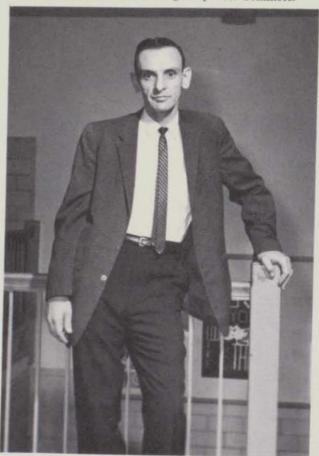

Mr. John Sommers' hobby is the stock market, which corresponds with Economics which he teaches. American Government is also taught by Mr. Sommers.

Ancient History is important as a background to Medieval-Modern by comparing our society with others

Unified Studies teachers, Miss Anne Commire, Mr. William Green, and Mr. John Johns, work together for the good of the class as a whole.

They bring the past into the present to help us prepare our future; their goal is for us to achieve our goals. They teach us the principles of our government, because we will become the people: the principle which is government. They help us understand world problems and their causes, as well as their location. Here we learn the problems of man applied to other societies, other cultures.

WTHS students learn American History plus English in Mr. Jack Weichoriz's Unified Studies Class.

As a history teacher, Mr. James Amell uses his conference hour to catch up on current events.

Theory; great potential and instruction

Physical Science helps WTHS students to understand how a substance is put together. Mr. Alfred Pavlish, Physical Science and Physics teacher, tries to explain something to his class.

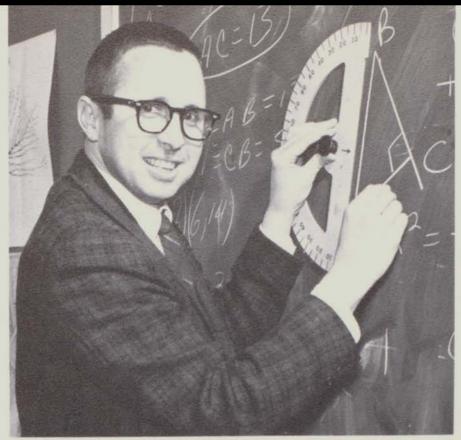

Pointing out a gland on the skeleton in Biology class is Mr. Earl Freeman.

understand how a substance is put together. Mr. Arthur K. Lake, Mr. Maynard Mathers, and Mr. David Daniels, Chemistry Mr. Alfred Pavlish, Physical Science and teachers, examine a new piece of equipment.

Minds, developed and finely tuned, they probe in darkness to kindle, to create, to generate light. Light is discovery, recognition. Light is the grasping for truth, light is understanding, light is knowledge. Once found, they project it, reflect it. They point it in dark corners. This is light, and we are light. They develop us, they create us.

Geometry can become somewhat involved. To help students understand it better, Mr. Robert Line, math teacher, explains a sample problem to them on the board.

Mr. Nicholas Menghini, mathematics teacher, explains a problem to his trig. class.

They inspire us with the principles of numbers, which we grope for and discover, ironically, in a world which was founded on numbers and built by them. We don't subtract or add — except, perhaps, with understanding of principles; but we compile and evaluate theories, prove and apply them. These are the mechanics of the knowledge that they give us.

Everyone is thrilled by the construction of the new addition to WTHS. Mr. Alfred Cuthrell, WTHS math teacher, is no exception, as he watches from his study hall window.

BOOKK E LIMMEDIATE REC

Mr. Raymond C. Garrison checks over a page of Bookkeeping.

Besides teaching Shorthand I and II, Miss Lulah Mc-Cully finds a spare moment to help the Trip club at WTHS.

Future skills

Mrs. Jean Greenacre, Business Education instructor, demonstrates the use of just one of the many office machines.

We will apply our knowledge to an already established, smooth-functioning world: a world of buying and selling and servicing and trading; a world of distributing and of discounting; a world of cash registers, advertising, sales clerks, and satisfied customers. We must learn to take part. As the American Youth is a strong, impressive, financial force, he is also a willing and competent assistant, an eager and challenging apprentice, a valuable and contributing employee. These teachers acquaint us with business methods, with the complexities of occupational training, with Life.

through instruction and practice

Showing the class how to place their fingers on the keyboard is Mr. William Fuller, teacher of Typing, Commercial Law, and Bookkeeping.

Mr. Tom Nickman, WTHS Personal and Business Typing teacher, also is Junior Varsity basketball coach.

Class discussion is important to bring out what the student thinks about a subject. Mr. James Thomas, teacher of World History and Practical Office Training, introduces a subject to his class to stimulate their thinking

Besides being a retailing teacher, Mr. Richard Shupe is kept busy with the Co-op program at WTHS.

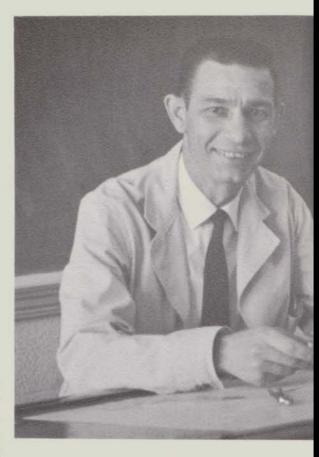

Auto shop is where you will find Mr. Norris Kinneberg, Auto Shop instructor. Here he is explaining the functions of each part of the motor of the automobile.

These are the creative teachers. They show us craftsmanship and ingenuity. They teach us to take what other people — or nature — have created and transform it into a practical or decorative product. They show us how to combine skills and talents and materials. This is our manual education, one of technique, one of promise.

New to WTHS, Miss Patricia Steffes teaches Art I and Crafts to Waterford High students.

Future skills

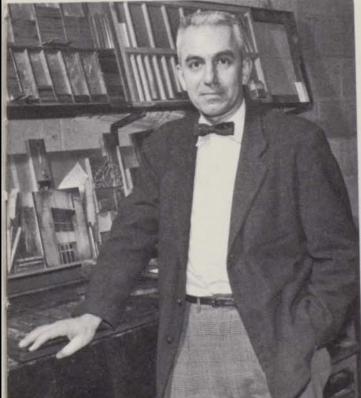

Although he has a busy teaching schedule, Mr. John Banick finds time to be the sponsor of the newly formed Art club.

through instruction

Smiling from behind his drafting board, Mr. Donald Benson appears to enjoy his work as instructor of Elementary Drawing, Mechanical Drawing, and Architectural Drawing classes.

Boys at WTHS learn to do many things with the Metal Shop machinery. Mr. Vernan Cork is the instructor of this important skill.

Wishing the whole day was as quiet as this, Mr. George Kressbach is surrounded by loose type and printing apparatus in the Print Shop. Besides being printing adviser for the school paper, The Anchor, he is also Wood Shop instructor.

Learn by doing, live while learning

Practicing a new piano piece is Mr. Robert Crumpton, Vocal Music Director, while Mr. Gene Preston, Instrumental Music Director, looks on.

Miss Barbara Rose, WTHS Librarian, looks through the file to locate something for a student.

Granting a universal education, they encourage us to prepare to the utmost for whatever we choose to do. They project appreciation to us. Preparation and appreciation are the keys to success in this area: appreciation for what we are learning — preparing — to do. They give us the instruction and the means. They influence us to branch out and follow through.

Raising a sewing machine to demonstrate how is Miss Anne Blair, WTHS Home Economics teacher.

Universal tool: universal strength

Gazing at the backboard and preparing to shoot is Mrs. Marjorie White, teacher of Biology and Physical Education classes.

Mr. Robert Taylor, Physical Education teacher shows a wrestling hold to his gym class.

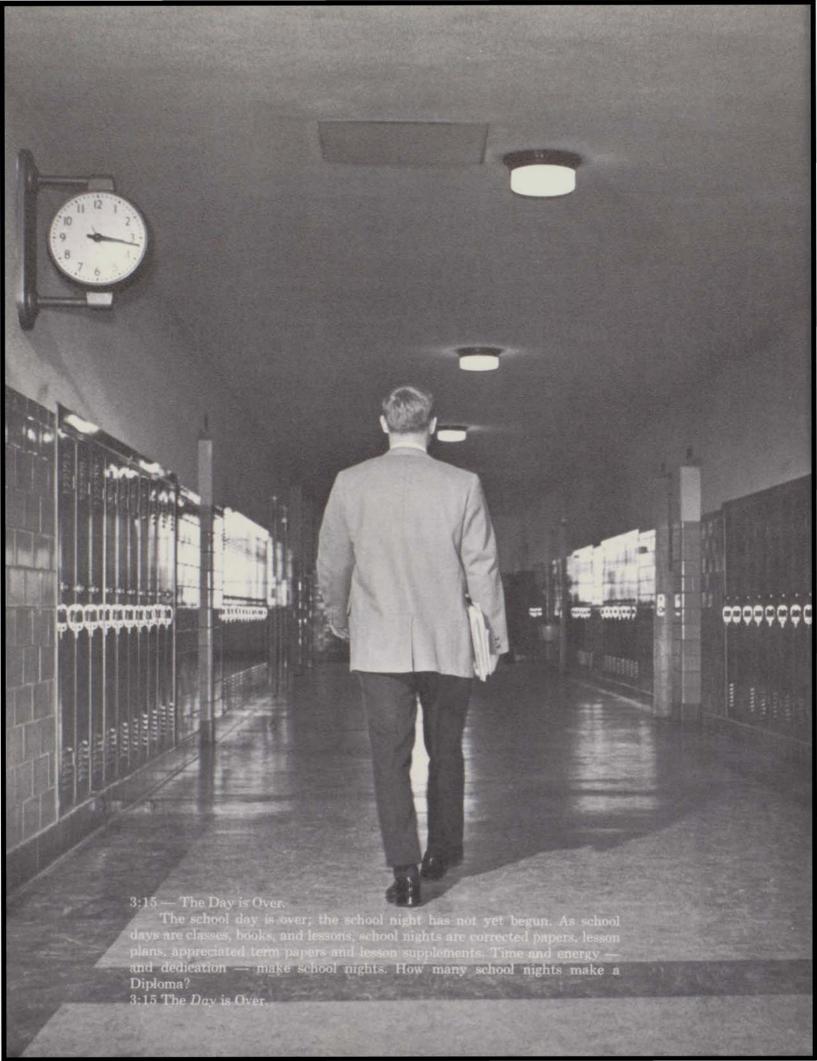

Explaining why he can't attend football practice to Mr. Stuart Thorell, Physical Education teacher and head football coach, is Senior David Wiltse.

In the Women's Physical Education Office, Miss Marie Knapp checks grades from one of her gym classes.

Theirs is a difficult job; they must teach teamwork in the midst of instruction aimed at the curiosity, the intelligence, the talent, the ambition of the individual. They must display strength and confidence: this is their department. Co-ordination, balance, poise, and ability all come with practice, and practice is born of strength and confidence.

We shared experiences — now a future

Foreign exchange students Chris and Per enjoy themselves as winter comes to Waterford.

No wonder Chris is so happy, for in Uruguay it never snows!

Two foreign exchange students attend WTHS

Every year WTHS invites a foreign exchange student to live with a family in Waterford and to attend WTHS for a year. This year, Waterford housed two exchange students, Chris Villar from Uruguay, and Per Ahlstrom from Sweden.

They are representatives of their respective countries to both learn our customs and to teach us a little about theirs. Exchanging customs and ideals between countries is an important step in helping countries to understand each other's peculiar problems, to promote good will between the countries, and to exchange ways of living.

Per Ahlstrom, our exchange student from Sweden, joins Tom McCullock in a skit to mock the varsity cheerleaders during a pep assembly.

Seniors

Pausing at the first summit, we realize that we have only just Begun, and we are Determined that we should continue with a Rush and a loud noise, to reach the summit and find a Niche there while Youth still provides us with Inspiration and enthusiasm. Driving Ambition has its beginning here — With no Limit on the other end.

Again this June, Waterford Township High School bids good-bye to another graduating class. Yet they remember the pleasant thoughts of their "good ole school days."

Activities of the first semester include the annual Homecoming, the Christmas dance (Christmas Mist), and the final sale of candy for the Senior Trip.

They finish the second semester with Mock Elections and their hard earned trip to Mackinac Island.

The Class of 1964 concludes the year with the anxiously awaited Prom and Commencement.

Lucky Seniors prepare for senior trip

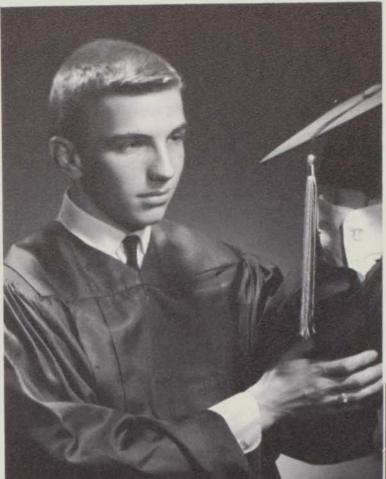

Unloading as they arrive at the school for the Senior trip are Barb Keith, Connie Simpson, Jerry Craig, Sue Grile, Marsha Bigsby, Terry Salisbury, Pat Kehn, and Jim Mortimer.

Two candy sales per year help to raise money for the annual Senior Trip. The trip begins on May 29, starting from Detroit and heading to Mackinac Island. On the return trip a stop is made in Holland, Michigan, to tour the tulip farms and then they head directly back to Waterford on May 31.

Anxiously awaiting the bus to take them to the U.S.S. South America for their senior trip are Fred Rohrer, Marv Davidson,

Ron Potter and Dale Jones lead class

Ron Potter, valedictorian

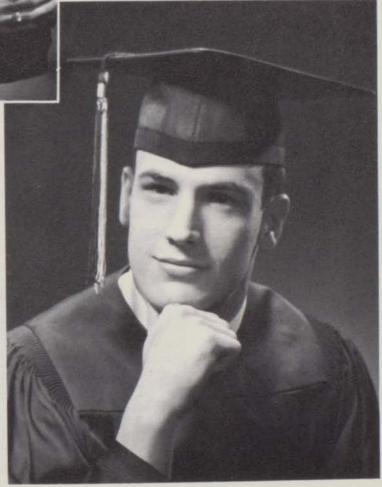

For his efforts in achieving a 3.38 average Dale Jones has earned the title of Salutatorian for the Class of 1964.

In his sophomore year, he was voted by the team as the "Outstanding Wrestler of 1962", and as a junior he was selected to attend "Boy's State" as a representative of WTHS. As a senior, Dale has served as President of the Student Council and the Inter-Lakes Council while captaining the football team. He has also been elected to the National Honor Society and belongs to the Latin and Varsity clubs. The Senior Class bestows upon him the honor of being "Most Valuable."

By maintaining a 3.84 average, Ronald Potter has received the greatest honor possible for a senior—Valedictorian.

Proving his versatility and ability, Ron combines school activities and sports with his studies. Among those he has participated in are Latin, Science, Hi-Y clubs, Senior Class Board, National Honor Society, wrestling, cross-country, football, and baseball. Demonstrating their faith in Ron, his fellow seniors voted him "Most Likely to Succeed" in the Senior Class Mock Election.

Board leads Juniors through active year

Looking forward to their Senior year, the Junior class will be able to look back on their Junior year as one of lasting memories and unforgettable happiness.

Two major activities highlighting the year were the production of Junior Showboat and the sponsoring of "Golddigger's Pick" the traditional Sadie Hawkins Dance.

Bearing the title of Seniors next year is one thing all Juniors are anxiously awaiting.

school career

Four years at WTHS when they first started; now two to go. For the Sophomores, the worst is over. Although they still have hard work to look forward to, they also have class rings, the production of Showboat and the thrill of becoming Seniors.

In the past year the Sophomores have planned and put on the annual Sophomore dance, have sponsored a pep assembly, and have been responsible for coat check at home basketball games.

Sally Chapman; second row — Janet Pascoe, Debbie Brazel, Sandy Parden, Lorae Bonneau, and Mary Ott.

Gwen Coppinger and Jean Priestley gaze wistfully at the senior showcase, thinking of the time when they, too, will be seniors.

Academics We open books: cautiously, curiously

Phil Karnoogian and Tom Koechig take part in a panel discussion in Major Authors class.

Kay Chidester listens attentively to recorded French drills.

We learn the fundamentals of knowledge as a beginning. We learn what we have to know so we will know what we have to learn. We begin at different times and work at different speeds, but begin we must — no matter what speed or ambition.

Language is communication. Our mastery of our own language and our communication in it must be nearly perfect; all other education is based on it. We learn to write what we have to say to the world, and read what the world has to say to us. Then our study broadens and encompasses foreign languages — the comunication of cultures different from our own. Besides communicating new thoughts and ideas, this study points out an ever-increasing desire to learn.

FUNDAMENTALS of learning: a fundamental of life

Busily doing an asignment in English is Diane Voydanoff.

Engrossed in a talk in Latin II class is Connie Lewis.

Fiction shelves draw the student to the works of some of the most widely-read authors.

Eighteenth century drama captures the attention of Roger Ealy and Tom Keel, two senior English students.

The beginning is important; is learned well

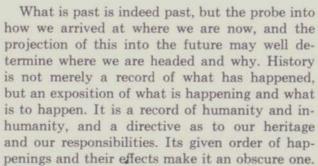

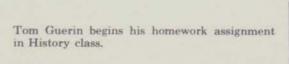

Mathematics is our key to the future, requiring only a thorough knowledge of its characteristics and an inspired application to the mysteries of the universe to unlock the treasures of success and progress. It is a set of numbers, a theory, a fundamental of knowledge.

Learning to teach . . . the hard way . . . is student teacher Mr. Jerry Lewis. Under his direction, Kip Lanway, and Ray Ball toil diligently.

Karen Yingling studies for an up-coming American History test.

Sounds of enthusiasm and inspiration

Don Stanger, WTHS drum major, practices his beginning step to start the band on its way down the field.

The music of a school: The music of happy, ambitious, promising youth overflows with exuberance and creativity. A song is as individual as are its creators and its musicians; we make it come alive and it lets us know that we are alive. Choice of music and originality of performance point out to the world our depth of spirit, lightness of heart, and both inherent and practiced ability. Any activity practiced with purpose and personal interest is creative.

WTHS Band officers for this year are: /ront row—Sue Bills, vice-president; Don Stanger, president; Sandy Mc-Kinney, secretary; second row—Terry Coatta, librarian; Sandy Thomas, librarian; and Gary Heichel, treasurer.

The WTHS marching band displays their talent and their loyalty as they form in a capital W.

It takes practice to learn just where to stop the slide on the trombone, but George Ballingall has mastered it.

With all those valves how do you know which one to press and when? Janet one to push on her clarinet.

Kent, after much practice, knows which Larry Price practices a musical arrangement on his saxophone.

WTHS students, Barbara Gaines and Jim Clark, go about their typing while Mrs. Greenacre helps Janet Highbaugh with a ten-key problem.

While we develop a world around our existence, we are developing around the world we exist in, and we learn its methods of business to make our existence practical. In this manner we can apply our knowledge and our theories to life, communicated by the exact means we have learned or by the imperfect but personal means we have created and developed. The purpose of our learning and our development is to enable us to enter into, contribute to, and help expand the business of our world.

Learning to operate the margin stops on a typewriter in Office Machines is Barbara Gaines.

Goal: success in a world of business

Kari Haaseth and Judy Sas work toward better typing in Office Machines.

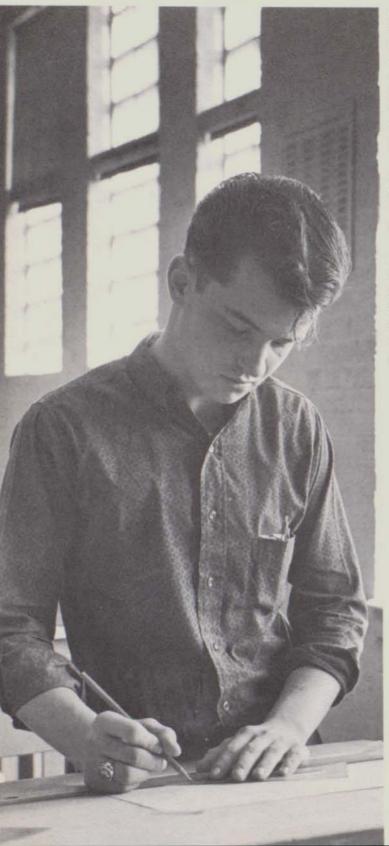

Before you can produce carbon copies you must first type an original which Sandy Ferguson begins to start.

Practicing adding on a ten-key in Office Machines is Susie Welch while Mary Whitten looks on.

Using our hands to get ahead

Drawing a house plan in Drafting is Mike Jenkinson.

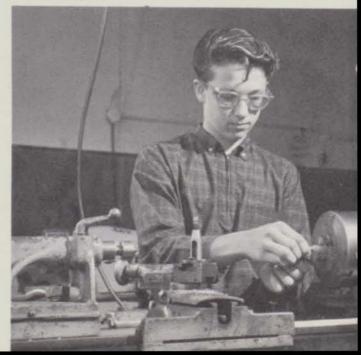

We learn manual skills to balance our mental training. We learn to transfer a plan from imagination to paper with exactness. We learn to work with wood, with leather, with metal, with our hands. Our learning of the use of tools means little until we understand that the class itself is a tool in the process of education. This understanding and its application is the greatest skill which must be learned.

In a world of transportation: exhaust fumes, engines, turn signals, and power brakes, we prepare to take our places through correct instruction.

Repetition of steering and parking drills makes us inclined to perform these movements automatically, supplemented by classroom instruction in the inner workings of the automobile and the safety which should be synonymous with its operation.

To protect his eyes from flying shavings in Metal shop, Lyle Mutter wears safety glasses.

Dick Short and Ron Balmer get right down to the main parts of the automobile in Auto shop.

Setting the cast of The Anchor is one of the weekly chores of John Evans in his Printing class.

Marc Stretton shows Mr. Burns and Maureen Stretton the workings of the motor.

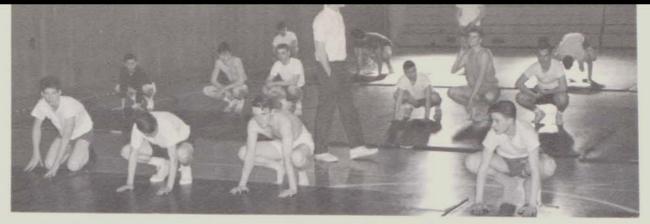

Learning to use the sewing machine in Home Economics is Jeanne Friedenstab.

Using our hands to get ahead

We learn everything necessary to the operation of our homes: all the skills which must be performed with care and dedication, of necessity but with love. We sew the clothes which represent us to the world, cook physical nourishment, and clean — because cleanliness is next to perfection. The value of mastering these skills of living while in our youth is incalculable, but when we compliment dexterity with intelligence, the scope of our accomplishments is limitless.

Vicki Chakroff knows that the ability to make clothes is a valuable asset.

Boys' Physical Education classes have many activities in gym. Stunts and tumbling are among them.

All the girls watch the ball soar over the net.

Strength-

"Two, one," yells Kathy Carpenter as she serves the ball in volleyball.

the cause and result of learning

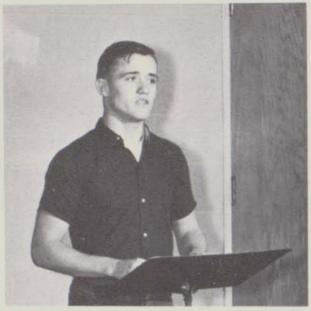

Each of us is a delicate balance. On one hand we amass great learning and training of the mind. and we balance the other hand with the development of skills, made possible through the development of strength. Physical strength, like mental strength must be acquired, developed, finely tuned, and put to good use. Coordination of strength is not limited to physical training, although it is included. We measure our progress in strength — weighed on a balance.

"It's mine," yells Mary Ann Neff, in a Volleyball game. This is just one of many sports the girls' physical Education classes have.

Expression:

the final step of education

Debating is fun plus being useful. Preparing himself for a coming speech is Mike Alsup.

Expression — a fundamental, an experiment, a creative medium, the primary business of living, a skill, and the greatest of strengths.

Expression follows naturally after all other phases of learning. It is worth all the rest, yet nearly impossible, lacking any of them. We feel we have learned something about us: our ambitions and abilities, limitless, sprouting from an idea and taking any form, going to any extreme, and eternally progressing. We, too, are progressing, and either carry expression with us, or are carried by it. We express what we are, and immediately, we express Youth.

Diane A'rello and Steve Spindeler compare notes for a Speech class presentation.

Expression is a major part of giving speeches. Linda Jergovich practices her gestures in front of a mirror to see how she is doing.

Impromptu speeches are spur of the moment speeches. Dave Thomas gives one of these for his speech class.

Although speech is a required subject, Tom Rais seems to enjoy speech.

We tread lightly, through an unfamiliar world, eyes open, studying our Environment. We stood still and watched the world around us, looking for an Opening our size; unsure of an opening at all. We followed an endless sidewalk, being careful not to step on any cracks. We stood on tiptoe to glimpse what lay over the horizon; we faced East, eagerly awaiting whatever the Sunrise of a new day would bring to us.

WHAT WE DID We became aware of

We explored

We ran barefoot through wet grass, sang a spontaneous and meaningless Song, and climbed only ladders and stairways that led up. We looked into several Doorways dubiously and occasionally opened a book with a lighter heart, and went through all the expected motions of youth. We did what beckoned to us; whatever needed doing with a leap and a Zest and a spirit of excitement.

We discovered

But to punctuate our experience, we learned to compete in sportsmanship, participate in activities, and organize our own activities to participate in. We learned to seek out a receptive Channel for our actions. We learned to share our energy and its products, learned to exchange Ideas and discoveries, and to give freely of our Understanding.

Organizations Outlets for energy, loyalty and friendship

Dale Jones, Student Council president, moderates a Council discussion on the question of whether or not to remain in the Inter-Lakes Student Council.

Student Council is student government. It gives students a voice to manage student affairs. They learn parliamentary procedure and are generally responsible for all club activities such as holding meetings, dances, and promoting good causes.

Student Council this year has, under the leadership of President Dale Jones, Vice president Kari Haaseth, Recording Secretary Rhonda Trzos, Corresponding Secretary Carol Parker, and Treasurer Mike Skelton promoted the March of Dimes, Homecoming activities, White Cane, get acquainted dance, after-game dances, spring recreation nights, an orientation assembly, and the Christmas drive for local needy families.

Student Affairs Committee solves problems

Discussing a problem of importance are Cappy Tibbals, honorary Student Council member, Lynn Hamilton, Cindy Rieves, Lynn Filer, Sandy Engebretson, Dick Raber, Rick Ziem and Dave Vario

In an effort to solve some of the important problems that were put to Student Council, such as school spirit and cleaning up of the cafteria, the Student Affairs Committee was formed. Two members from each grade make up the committee.

Dave Venie and Richard Raber compose a letter addressed to the Student Council.

Cindy Reeves and Rick Ziem check over the records of the Student Affairs Committee.

3.0 and better-leaders of WTHS

Do you want a scholarship? Then you have probably been influenced by the National Honor Society. The society is made up of those students with a 3.0 scholastic average or better and participate in good citizenship at WTHS. They have other purposes such as to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote worthy leadership, and to encourage the development of character in students of WTHS. Headed by President Kathy Jones, Vice-President Jeannie Wagner, Secretary Sandy McKinney, and Treasurer Pon Potter: this year's club worked on concessions, sponsored a dance, and had pictures taken for a magazine advertisement under the sponsorship of Mr. Nicholas Menghini and Mr. Richard Powell.

Discussing plans for National Honor Society are officers Ron Potter, treasurer: Kathy Jones, president; Sandy McKinney, secretary; and Jeanie Wagner, vice-president.

Important behind-the-scenes people are prompter Lynn Hamilton and stagehand David Joan.

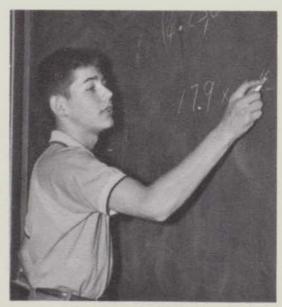

Slide rule proves to be helpful

Slide Rule club members John Hills, Paul Domas, and Sylvia Smith quickly work a problem on the slide rule.

Paul Domas, Kon Toroni, John Hills, Sylvia Smith, and John Wale collaborate on a particularly difficult problem.

Demonstrating a principle of the slide rule is instructor for the night, Ron Toroni.

Mary Sue Trerice, secretary; Sue Bills, vicepresident; Harold Western, treasurer; and Bob Lamb, president organize material for a science club meeting.

Don Stanger adjusts the scales as Darryl Clement, Gary Heichel, and Wayne Wilson look on, learning the principles of measuring accurately.

Why, What, and How are all answered by Science Club

To explore and get acquainted with the many and varied sciences and to be able to answer the "whys" of the world around us is the primary purpose of the WTHS Science club. Throughout the year the Science club has taker various field trips.

Learning fundamentals of simple cameras and developing procedures proves to be a worthwhile project for Science club members Ron Potter, Terry Coatta, and Tom Bills.

Debaters improve as season progresses

Sue Welch, Tom Talaba, and Helen Carrick listen intently to a fellow debater.

Learning to think critically and analytically, using the principles of logic, and reasoning out both sides of a controversial topic are the high aims of the Debate club.

Under the guidance of Mr. Gilbert Bergsrud, the results of diligent work proved to be successful as the Varsity squad finished the season with a 9-7 record.

Diligent research that leads to good debates seems to be a key to the success of Dale Flowers and Mike Alsup.

Outstanding journalists accepted in Quill and Scroll

Quill and scroll is a national honorary society for students who have done outstanding work on the Anchor, the Waterlog or both.

Journalists who have maintained a satisfactory academic average and have made an outstanding contribution are approved by the Quill and Scroll Society.

Newly elected members of Quill and Scroll are: front row—Carol Willis, Joan Davidson, Sharon Reed, Priscilla Feole; second row—Helen Carrick, George Ballingall, Susie Welch and Mary Ann Boyt.

Returning members of Quill and Scroll are Rhonda Trzos, Tom Keel, and Joy Delauter.

Returning Quill and Scroll member Marlene Kibbie tells new members Mary Barningham, and Bruce MacDonald about the organization.

French club members complete active year

Hurrying through the doors to catch the bus going to the Little World's Fair in Ann Arbor are Evelyn Saddler, Marilyn Cadman, Karen Coleman, and Ed Pontney.

Mary Lesar, Sharon Good, Janice Abel, and Sandy Hughes design French club pins to submit to the club.

Checking over French club's financial records to see how much they will donate for Waterford's new lobby are Janis Colling, president; Linda Morgan, vice president; Leanne Poffenberger, treasurer; and Margaret Wilson, secretary.

Sophomores Regan Reith, Gayanne Mansfield, Mike McIntyre, Judy Houk, Lorae Bonneau, and Mary Ott pack school stationery for the annual French club stationery sale.

French club members may or may not speak French — that is not the purpose of the club. The idea is to study the origin of this language: the country, the people, their customs, and their culture.

This year, the French club participated in the Foreign Students' Fair at the University of Michigan, and were shown exhibits of culture from many countries. They also handled concessions at sporting events and other activities, and sold school stationery.

The real test of pronunciation and courage, however, was the annual trip to a real French restaurant in Detroit.

Old Rome lives again!

Discussing the apparel they'll be wearing on Toga Day are Nancy Scribner, Nancy Rousku, Sherry Zannoth, and Dick McDowell.

Latin club Secretary Ann Green, President Kathy Payne, and Treasurer Janet Leach study a magazine article about Ancient Rome.

Translating sentences like "I am the greatest!" into Latin ("Maximus sum") can often bring enjoyment and interest to club members Jean Voydanoff, Larry Price, Carolyn Gustafson, Ken Main, and Dave Venie.

Latin club members went through a vigorous initiation as they bravely participated in Toga Day. With Mr. John Makowski as sponsor, the club has taken various trips.

Co-operative training in retailing

Sandy Ferguson, Co-op member, assists Dr. Horowitz in preparing a patient for an X-ray.

Co-op is an instrument for students to find answers to working situations. Students gain experience and credits in three different fields, which are office, retailing, and nursing. The students taking Co-op are graded according to the recommendations from their employer and observations of the faculty co-ordinator.

YFC club provides fellowship

Paul Kitchen, Regan Rieth, Larry Kline, Pam Barron, Ken Hodges, this year's officers, take a look to see what's on next week's agenda.

Paul Kitchen, Linda Berry, Dale Flowers, Chuck King, Albert Roth, and Virginia Laidler talk with the special speaker they had out to club.

Sue Perria, Jackie Stenberg, Cathy Monroe, and Sheila Johnston talk about what they're going to wear at the pizza party coming up.

Giving teenagers a chance to share their ideas, experiences, and devotions, and to gain a richer understanding of one another is the goal of the WTHS Bible club.

Special music, skits, films and other activities were on the agenda this year. Mr. Raymond Garrison is the sponsor.

Modern Dance club splits into three groups

Pat Kehn, Diane Rouse, Connie Simpson, Pat Tucker, Pat Spenser, Pat Mulanix work on their dance for the jazz group.

Girls interested in Modern Dancing can join the WTHS Modern Dance club. Sponsor of Modern Dance club is Mrs. Majorie White. Students learn to put what they feel into expression through dances. This gives the student who plans to go on to a dancing career a lot of practice.

Carolyn Hall, Maureen Stretton, Sandy Harnishfeger, Carolyn Rudlaff, April Edens, Carol Kresge, and Terry Salisbury work in the modern group.

Lynn Schalit rehearses her dance for the next meeting.

Elaine Carlson, Julie Appel, Christen Villar, and Jeanette Howey work on for the jazz group.

Audio-visual aids volunteers provide important service to the school

Frank German checks his space allowance between the doors and his projector.

Audio-visual aids volunteers, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Lake, give their services to make transporting and servicing machines easier for the staff to handle.

Students' interests pull them from their study halls to learn and carry out processes of running cameras, tape recorders, and making repairs on machines where needed.

Hal Balmer and Creg Heichel take inventory of equipment taken out during the day.

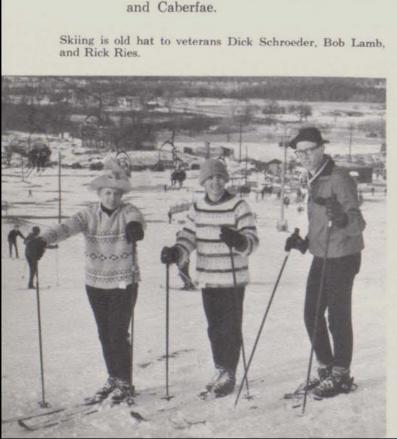

Hal Balmer clears a tape before issuing it to the next person.

Recreation draws many to join Ski club

Who said skiing is a down-hill sport? WTHS students move up in the world.

With their school right in the heart of America's foremost skiing area, Ski club members enjoy limitless opportunities for recreation and good-natured competition. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Stuart Thorell and Mr. Alfred Cuthrell, the club grew to its largest enrollment in recent years, and made ski trips to Cadillac, Mt. Holly, and Caberfae.

Art club new at WTHS

President Janie Keith puts the finishing touches to a portrait in pastels.

Lani DeRousha works on her oil painting — another medium through which artists can express themselves.

Working the air bubbles out of clay which will eventually be molded and baked are Marlene Kibbie and Carol Willis.

Bringing together of students with a sincere interest in art is the main objective of the newlyformed Art club.

The club, which has approximately 15 members, meets from 7 to 9 p.m. each Monday. After a short business meeting, members work on individual projects.

Activities included a trip in February to the Pontiac Mall to see the art exhibit, film strips on the lives of famous artists, and guest speakers.

Officers are Janie Keith, president; Marlene Kibbie, vice president; and Maureen Simmons, treasurer. Co-sponsors of the club are Mr. John Banick and Miss Patricia Steffes.

Leanne Poffenberger gets ready to paint a finished sculpture as Ron Wilder works on his tempera design.

Future teachers do cadet teaching in schools

Obtaining an insight on teaching is one of the primary purposes of the Future Teachers club. The teachers of tomorrow meet today to from the Waterford Township High School Future Teachers of America club.

Members of this club act as cadet teachers in area elementary schools.

Karen Coleman reports at Future Teachers club meeting, as Mr. Keith Garnett, Janie Keith, Rhoda Hart, Marilyn Cadman, Lynn Green, and Mr. Donald Arsen, obviously pleased, give her their rapt attention.

Future Teachers member Terry Salisbury listens attentively as April Davis explains "Bonjour."

Anne Green, president, calls the meeting to order while Secretary Sandy Klee takes the minutes.

Students aid those needing help

In keeping with their record for organization and efficiency Future Nurses club officers Maureen Stretten, vice president; Sylvia Galloway, treasurer; Sandy McKinney, president; and Connie Lewis, secretary; check and recheck files.

Placing a bandage on a patient's wrist is Jane Marcum.

During Christmas and Thanksgiving, the Future Nurses club collects food for baskets to distribute to needy families. The girls who are sixteen and over are eligible to work at the Oakland County Care Facility in her spare time to aid and comfort anyone needing her help.

Sigh. Some day, with patience, practice, and persistence, members Pat Mulanix, Lynn Hadsell, Sandy Bass, and Joyce Galloway will wear the candy stripe hats of the student nurse. Until then — they can dream, can't they?

Bonnie Mako knocks on the door of a patient before entering her room.

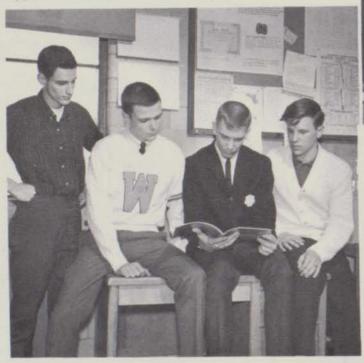

"Hi-Y Day" big on schedule

Fred Rohrer, Jan Appel, Larry Price, and Larry Carlson check last minute de-tails for their trip to Lansing, sponsored by Hi-Y.

Activities certainly aren't scarce on Rec nights held by Hi-Y members. They are Chuck Swenson, Rick Russ, Mike Owens, Jerry Craig, Bob Lamb, and Bob Mihay.

Planning a trip to Lansing are Hi-Y members Fred Rohrer, Jan Appel, Dick Miller, and Larry Price. Jan Appel was elected governor of the day.

Besides being an organization of fun-loving boys, the members of Hi-Y run the government of Michigan for one day. Michigan Hi-Y Day is a memorable occasion for the club. Recreation nights and an assembly are the other activites sponsored by Hi-Y. Hi-Y is affiliated with the YMCA.

Helping the needy heads Y-Teens agenda

Members of Y-Teens area fellowship of girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideas of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians.

Y-Teens had many activities on the agenda this year. They held a pajama party at the YWCA, prepared a Christmas basket for a needy family and sponsored a hayride.

Officers of Y-Teens gather to talk over the weeks events. President Lucretia Flener, Treasurer Carol Thomas. Secretary Pam Clark, Vice President Margaret Wilson

Cheryl Faust and Sherri Garven clean up after the Y-Teen's meeting.

Bowling league is all teamwork

Officers of the WTHS Bowling League are Ross Moore, Creig Heichel, Jeff Bowman, and Nancy Weber.

Another strike by Ross Moore helps him maintain his average in the WTHS bowling league.

"Will it be a strike or a spare?" anticipates Randy Parsons.

Waterford's Bowling League is a chance for even non-athletic people to participate in outside recreation. They bowl on four-man teams for trophies for the best team, high individual score, and high series and high team series.

The 30 members of this year's Bowling League meet every Wednesday after school starting in October and continuing through April under the sponsorship of Mr. William Fuller.

Gail Van Kleek knows the advantage of a good follow-through.

Sports We compete for a school's honor

Waterford has 0-3-2 league record for season

Mr. Waldo Ashley, Athletic Director

Head Coach Stu Thorell

"Hold that line" cried the cheerleaders and the team responded brilliantly. Waterford's defensive team proved that they were one of the toughest with their goal line stands time and again. Rick La Bair and Lee Kaiser sparkled Waterford with experience along with newcomer Richard Court.

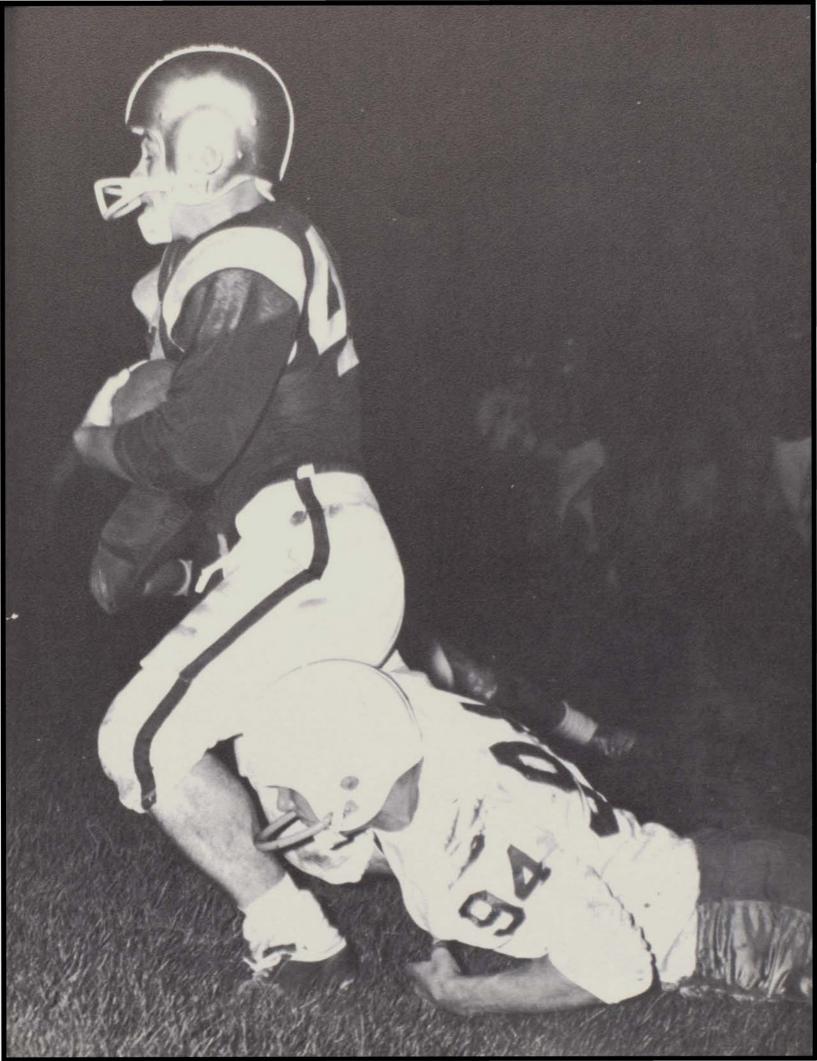

Participating in a sport in itself is an asset to the building of character. Waterford's 1963 football team, although boasting a record 1-5-3, had school spirit, team spirit, and the desire to win. Leading the team were co-captains Dale Jones, Andy Straka, and Rick La Bair. Coaching the team were Mr. Stu Thorell, Mr. Alfred Cuthrell, and Mr. Robert Taylor.

Raising a protest against Mother Goose are juniors Frank Van Husen, Bobbie Herrmann, Sue Moore, Diane Eggleston, Pam Good, Marie Howard, Lois Goff, and Pam Morgan.

With sparkle and enthusiasm, the talented Junior Class scored a great success with Showboat, presented this year as the "Trial of Mother Goose." Charged with corrupting the minds of children, Mother Goose's defense provided a basis for many creative and entertaining skits based on nursery rhymes. The production was under the sponsorship of Mr. Bergsrud, and the juniors enjoyed putting it on as much as the audience enjoyed watching.

Curtain calls climax unity of cast

Sharing in the fun, hard work, joys, and disappointments of producing and presenting The Curious Savage and Lost Horizon, many of the cast increased in experience and knowledge.

In the Prologue of Lost Horizon Rutherford (Ken Banes) relates to his friends, Myra (Jeanette Howey), Elizabeth (Sherry Zannoth), and Wyland (Jim Walsh), about his experience in his search for Conway and Shangri-la.

Although it is the actors who receive the applause, many students combine their efforts behind the scenes to help in make-up, publicity, tickets, and costumes.

With the final curtain call came a feeling of accomplishment by all who worked on, or participated in the two productions.

The High Lama (Tom Talaba) breaks the news to Conway (David Ramsey) and Lo Tsen (Mary Burrell) that they will never be allowed to leave the valley of Shangri-la.

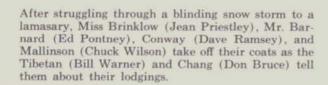

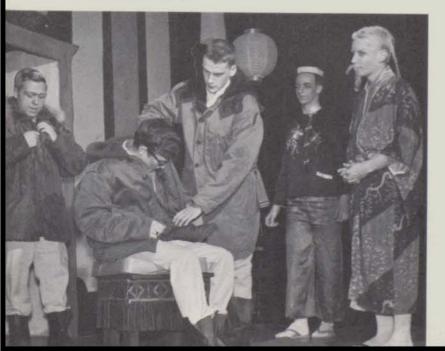

Hannibal, played by Don Bruce, gets ready to serenade the others in the institution.

"Pang to shik mein," says Ai-ling (Gwen Coppinger) to Conway (Dave Ramsey) and Helen (Leanne Poffenberger) about the death of the High Lama as Fashi (Sue Enfield) receives the news with sadness.

Lilly Bell (Carolyn Hall) and Titus (Jim Walsh) explain to Doctor Emmett (Mike Stricland) about their mother's illness.

The A Capella Choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Crumpton, sings traditional carols during the Christmas assembly.

Faculty members, students, and maintenance workers alike, are all surrounded by the Christmas spirit this year at Waterford.

We are mindful of both the spiritual and the traditional aspects of Christmas by our gaily trimmed Christmas tree, festive bulletin boards and the showcase display of the nativity scene.

Yuletide joy is also increased during the Christmas assembly by the A Capella Choir singing a variety of songs and carols under the direction of Mr. Crumpton.

Admiring generous contributions for Christmas baskets are Joan Nicholson, Margaret Wilson and Fred Finkbeiner.

The Nativity scene on display in the showcase depicts the spiritual aspect of Christmas.

Brightening the halls of Waterford for the Christmas season is the familiar tree being decorated by student council members Fred Finkbeiner, Joan Nicholson, Cindy Rieves, Margaret Wilson, and Lin Filer.

Both spiritual and traditional aspects of Christmas fill WTHS

Ugly Man contestants Bob Schalit and Bud Fulkerson line up for the judging.

Demonstrating their "Precision drills" are members of the "WTHS marching band."

Seniors cheer in a special section in pep assemblies.

Varsity and J.V. cheerleaders often get together at pep assemblies to do "Victory!"

Assemblies bring school together

As President of Student Council, Dale Jones presides over many of the assemblies.

Students listen intently as job opportunities are reviewed on Career Day.

Career consultants and teachers avidly listen as Mr. Jack Shingleton delivers the keynote address.

School assemblies enable the student body, as a whole, to enjoy plays, pep sessions, vocal and instrumental music, and guest speakers.

Much planning goes into every assembly, in the hopes that it will be thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Mr. Robert Crumpton directs the A Capella Choir and Girls' Chorus during the Christmas assembly.

Faculty versus donkeys in basketball

Mr. Tom Nickman and Mr. Stuart Thorell try to obtain the ball from their competitor in Waterford's annual Donkey Basketball Game.

Mr. John Johns tries to decide which way to go as his donkey doesn't seem to want to move.

Mr. Norris Kinneberg and Mr. Tom Nickman try to find the ball as other WTHS faculty members look in on the fun.

Waterford's men faculty members put their books away for one exciting night as they "trot" down the bright, shiny court on the backs of donkeys. They laugh and ride vigorously as they try to score for Waterford once again.

Proceeds from this project, sponsored annually by the Varsity club, are used to purchase equipment needed by the school's athletic department.

Mr. Stuart Thorell has a little trouble riding his co-worker as they "trot" down the court.

GAA Letter club versus women's faculty

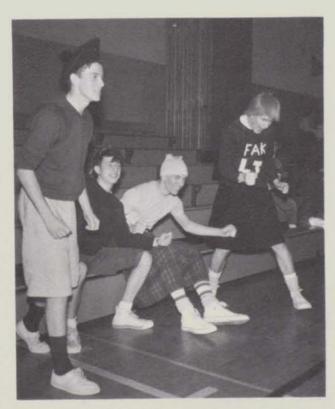

Each year the GAA Letter Club members pit their skill in basketball against the women faculty.

Cheering both teams on were a few members of the Varsity Club, dressed quite differently from the regular cheerleaders.

Taking winner's honors by a score of 26-24 this year was the GAA Letter Club.

Closely guarding Miss Marie Knapp as she shoots for a basket is Priscilla Alden.

Cheering lustily are "Varsity Cheerleaders" Martin Swackhammer, Graydon Swackhammer, Diek Miller, and Bill Boroska.

Pam Clark, Priscilla Alden, Miss Knapp, and Lynn Bone anxiously await the outcome of a jump ball between Connie Simpson and April Edens.

Waterford's first Hootenanny is a success

One of the many highlights of the evening were the Travelers, Waterford's own folk singers.

For the first time in the history of WTHS we held a hootenanny. As the gym was filled with folk songs along with students laughing and clapping, all had a good time.

The villagers, a singing group from Rochester High School show their talent as the audience applauds gleefully.

WTHS students make up a very interesting audience as they listen to the entertainment of the various.

Students, Faculty, and Administration . . .

The enjoyment and the work that it took to make this book are treasures I will always hold. I could not have had these if it weren't for the cooperation of all of you. There would have been no anticipation or sleepless nights. To you I say: Thank you.

My Staff ...

You are the backbone of this book, the workers, the dedicated. It is you I will never forget. To you I express my greatest thanks and respect: Mrs. Barbara Shupe, adviser; Tom Keel. Associate Editor; Mary Ann Boyt, Academics Editor; Sharon Reed, Sophomore Editor; Priscilla Feole, Junior Editor; Susie Welch, Senior Editor; Sandra Barnes, Organizations Editor; Bruce MacDonald, Sports Editor; Kitty Mosure, Activities Editor; and Joan Davidson, Business Manager.

I would also like to thank our school photographer, Mr. Dimitri LaZaroff, for all his patience, kindness, and outstanding work; and Ken Hodges, student photographer, for the many times he took pictures.

Finally to Mr. and Mrs. Mack Suprumowicz of the Modern Yearbook Company, a sincere thank you for their sugestions and cooperation.
